Summit

Nikita Asks China

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has turned down a Red Chinese invitation to Mao Tse-tung to Moscow for a summit meeting to discuss the ideological rift between the two Communist giants, Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The Soviet Communist party's central committee extended the invitation to Mao in a note delivered to Chinese Communist party leaders in Peking. (See also Page 26.)

It suggested spring or summer for a Mao-Khrushchev meeting. If Mao cannot make the trip the Soviet note said, it suggested he send a representative for high-level talks May 15, Tass reported.

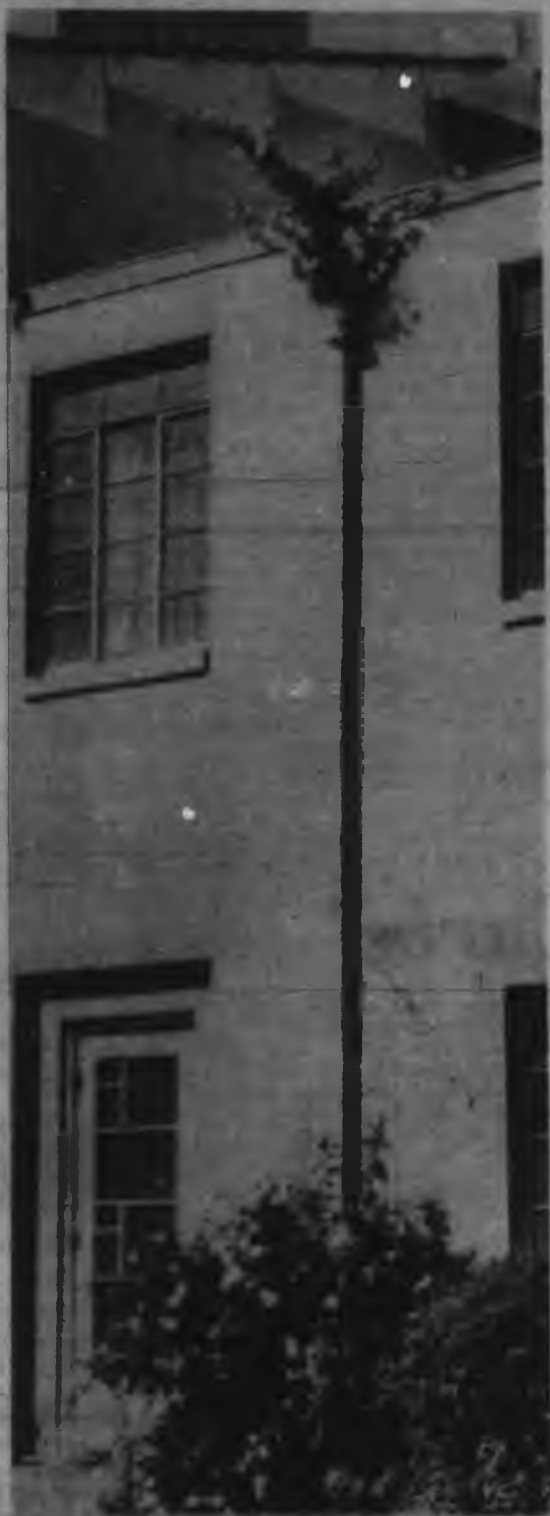

There was no immediate Peking reaction to the Soviet note.

Israel Calls Session Over Crises

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's Parliament will hold a special session Sunday to discuss Israel's relations with West Germany and the resignation of the officially anonymous chief of Israel's security service.

The special session has been demanded by three opposition parties—the right-wing Herut, the Liberals and the left-wing Mapam—joined since Monday by the Communists.

All these parties are expected to move a motion of no confidence in the coalition government headed by Premier Ben-Gurion.

Diefenbaker

Burnt Sacrifice Canada's Role Under Liberals

MONTREAL (CP)—Liberal party nuclear policy seems to raise the prospect of making Canada into a "burnt sacrifice," Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

In speeches here and at nearby Dorion, he hit hard at the nuclear question—especially in connection with recently disclosed Senate testimony by Defense Secretary McNamara of the United States.

"Are they going to make Canada into a burnt sacrifice?" the prime minister said in reference to the Liberal decision to accept nuclear warheads for NATO and NORAD weapons including the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

McNAMARA STAND

"That is what he (McNamara) quite frankly points out," said the prime minister. He spoke to about 200 people in Dorion and about 600 in Montreal on the second floor of the Dorion Hotel.

The prime minister reiterated that he sees an upsurge in party fortunes. He said that Mr. McNamara confirms the government's policy of refusing to have nuclear warheads for the Bomarc stored in Canada.

Further, in effect Mr. McNamara said that the Bomarc is a "burnt sacrifice."

WINNIPEG (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson pleaded Tuesday night for the electoral support he needs to form a strong, stable government and promised that if he gets it, his finance minister—whom he did not name—will produce a budget within a month after the Commons meets in May.

He said the budget would include "a program—this is important—for reversing the present trend toward excessive consumption of Canadian resources and Canadian companies." It was the first time he had said this. He did not elaborate.

HECKLING LIGHT

Mr. Pearson spoke to about 2,500 in the 10,000-seat Winnipeg Arena. Heckling and booing were heard.

His budget promises also included a long-term economic expansion program aimed at "elimination of unemployment" and a program to reduce the balance-of-payments deficit.

NEW ANGLE

Mr. Pearson introduced another new angle in an oft-repeated pledge to set up a national development corporation, by saying it would be able to sponsor and invest in "large economic projects beyond the scope of private industry in Canada."

"It's these big projects which we had after 1945 we've got to get going again," he said. The corporation would be using "the financial power of the state."

Again he pledged a municipal

Liquor Prices Shaved

Price of imported liquor has been reduced by the provincial government as the result of a federal government move to terminate emergency tariffs imposed last year.

The new cut in prices is the second since Ottawa commenced reducing the tariff structure.

An order-in-council passed by the cabinet incorporates reductions for imported brands of Scotch, Irish whisky, bourbon, brandy, gin, rum, wine, liqueurs, ales and stout.

Scotch prices are reduced from 10 cents per 20-ounce bottle for the cheapest brands to 40 cents for the most expensive. Reductions for other types of liquor correspond.

Stubby Bottles On Sale Today

The new compact "stubby" beer bottles will be on sale in some Victoria liquor stores today. They will be returnable on the same basis as the old ones.

Woman Stages Holdup

A stocky woman armed with a gun held up Quonley's Fruit Store, 1628 Government Street, early today and fled with more than $150.

"She came in and picked up an armful of groceries," owner Sam Chan told the Colonist early today.

"She told me to tally them up then when the cash register opened, she pulled out a gun and asked me for the money," Police said the woman was wearing an Indian sweater and slacks.

She fled in the direction of Herald Street. A search of the area was being conducted by police at press time.

Mr. Chan said the woman was carrying a paper bag when she ran out of the store. She had ordered him to put the money in the bag. She left the groceries behind.

Rebels Shell Tanks

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rebel planes and artillery bombed and shelled a government tank column near La Plata Tuesday night in a new outburst of Argentina's navy-led revolt to oust President Jose Maria Guido.

The latest clash broke out in a residential section of La Plata, about 35 miles south of Buenos Aires, two hours after Guido's command claimed Argentine rebels had been routed from most of the stronghold they had seized in a sudden anti-Peronist uprising Tuesday.

Rebels mounted government victory claims with warnings that the Argentine fleet, led by the aircraft carrier Independence, was steaming full speed toward Buenos Aires to deliver a knockout blow to Guido's regime.

Latins Split

CARACAS (UPI)—Venezuela broke relations with Guatemala Tuesday and ordered its ambassador in Guatemala City and his staff to return to Caracas immediately.

The foreign ministry said it will not recognize the new military government because of Venezuela's announced policy not to have relations with any regime of force, the announcement said.

Strongman Cheered

GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—Col. Enrique Peralta made his first public appearance Tuesday as Guatemala's strongman and won rousing cheers with a pledge of sweeping economic reforms under the free enterprise system.

CIA Backed Raiders

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York man said Tuesday night his 26-foot boat, the Violynn III, had been used repeatedly in Cuban exile operations, often with the advance knowledge of the U.S. government.

Alexander Rorko Jr., 26, whose 26-foot boat and 17 anti-Castro raiders were seized in the Bahamas, said the Violynn III will be used in future Cuban operations if the British seize it.

"I think it is time that some of us did something about it," said Rorko of the Cuban situation.

Cuba Sorry Over Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuba expressed regret Tuesday for what it said was a mistaken attack on a U.S. freighter last Thursday. It promised to try to prevent such incidents in the future.

Rorko, a freelance television reporter who said he had been a prisoner of Cuban Premier Castro's regime on two occasions, said the boat has made 11 Cuban runs since last October. On eight of them, he continued, students from U.S. universities participated.

He identified the schools as Harvard, Boston College, Miami University, Princeton and Indiana, but declined to name the students because "I don't think it is fair to the boys."

LANDED AGENTS

The U.S. government, through the Central Intelligence Agency, had advance knowledge of the trips, Rorko said. He described the operations as supply missions or trips to land agents in Cuba and said the only shots fired from Violynn III were defensive, after the boat had been fired upon.

Rorko also claimed that the CIA had financed trips of the Violynn III. These were leaflet raids in October and December of 1961, he said.

Students Stuck On Cattle Boat

CAMPBELL RIVER—A cattle boat has replaced the Quadra Queen temporarily on the Quathilasi Cove-Campbell River run—and Quadra Island parents are unhappy.

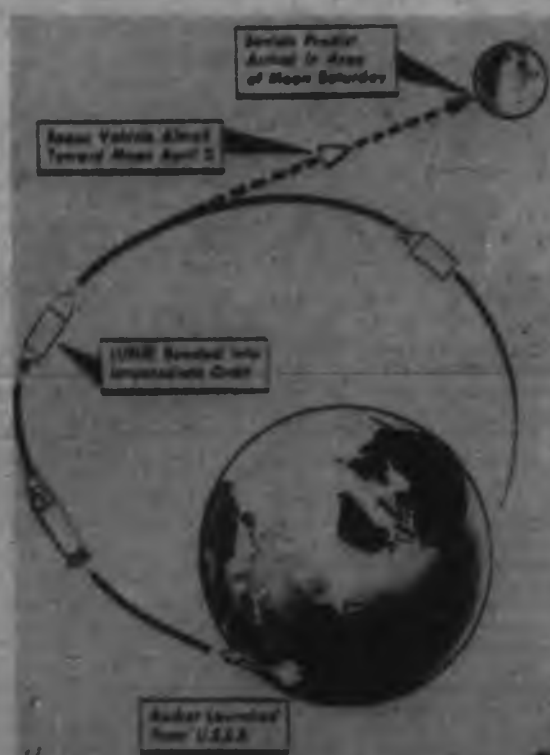

The 68 students at Campbell River High School who live on Quadra Island were asked to be at the Cove by 8:15 a.m. Tuesday to be ferried to school.

By 8:30 a.m. the cattle boat had a full load and left—without half the students.

The boat returned for these students at 9:05 a.m., and left for Campbell River with its second full load at 9:23 a.m.

All the students were now across but all were late for school, the second group about an hour late.

According to information here this situation will continue until the Easter holidays. Island residents have written to Highways Minister Gagliardi asking for better ferry facilities.

Explorer Satellite In Orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Explorer 17 satellite rocketed into orbit Tuesday night to make the most comprehensive study ever attempted of the earth's atmosphere.

The scientific package was propelled into space by a three-stage Delta rocket, the reliable booster which now has lifted 16 straight satellites into orbit.

Lubell Forecasts Liberal Victory—in Minority

By SAM LUBELL
Eight of a Series

Prime Minister Diefenbaker faces defeat in his bid for reelection in next Monday's voting.

During the last two weeks the 67-year-old Conservative leader has managed to cut the divisions in his own party with his "everybody is against me" campaigning. The enthusiasm of his supporters has also been strengthened by the feeling that "He said the Bomarcas were worthless and now the United States admits it."

Still a drop in Mr. Diefenbaker's support to below 100 seats—it now is 116—seems fairly certain in view of the virtually collapsed Conservative vote in Quebec and the strong anti-Diefenbaker revolt among Alberta staunch Conservatives in the more urbanized parts of Ontario.

Whether Liberal leader Lester Pearson can pick up the 133 seats needed for a clear majority remains uncertain. During the last five weeks I have interviewed typical voters in 41 of the nation's more sensitive ridings. These interviews indicate that the Liberals probably can count on something like 120 seats, with another 15 to 20 seats still close and doubtful.

A pro-Liberal surge in the next few days could sweep Mr. Pearson in with a majority. Up to this writing, though, I have found no evidence of any such surge. The main changes in voter feeling that I have detected in recent days have been a stiffening of pro-Diefenbaker loyalty and a jump in the proportion of voters who protest, "I'm disgusted with all four parties. This election should never have been held."

In Ottawa a government pension expert summed up a feeling I have found in every riding when he said, "Diefenbaker has shown he isn't fit to be Prime Minister but Pearson is no leader either."

Probably the key to Liberal hopes is the sizable number of voters who declare, "I don't care which party wins as long as someone gets a majority." If these voters decide en masse that the Liberal party holds the only hope for a stable government, their votes could still produce a majority government.

Even if that were to happen, Monday's balloting will still be that of a sorely divided, election-weary nation. The rural-urban cleavage laid bare in the 1962 election has been deepened by this year's campaigning. Entangled with this farm-city conflict are bitter differences of sectional interests and economic class, reflecting the uneven economic development across the country; also conflicting attitudes towards the United States.

The heaviest Liberal gains can be expected in the two urban-suburban complexes of Toronto and Montreal, which hold about a fifth of Canada's population. In Monday's voting these areas seem likely to be swept clear of Conservative representation in Parliament. One of two popular MPs like Frank McGee in the Toronto suburb of York-Scarboro may survive but even this isn't too good a bet.

Metropolitan Toronto and Montreal are the parts of Canada which have experienced

Burtons to Separate —But Divorce Is Out

NEW YORK — British actor Richard Burton and his wife Elizabeth Taylor announced they have agreed to separate. He has been linked romantically with actress Elizabeth Taylor. The Burton's lawyer, Aaron Frosch, said: "Divorce has not been considered or discussed. All financial and other arrangements have been concluded."

SCARBOROUGH, Ont. — Board of education officials were impartial when they named two secondary schools. They named one for Tory Sir John A. Macdonald and the other for Liberal Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

ANCHORAGE — Alaska's defence was praised by Lt. Gen. George Mundy, who said two Russian planes came within about two seconds of being shot down March 14. There had been "a lot of misinformation and emotionalism" about the flight of two Soviet planes over Alaska last month, said Mundy, commander-in-chief of the joint air force-navy army Alaskan command.

CARDIFF — Bachelor Gary Lockyer, 18, says he adores girls, "in small doses," which is why he wants a transfer from the local post office accounting department, where he's the only male on a 121-member staff. His application has been rejected for the time being and a union official said: "Poor chap. He'll have to suffer a little longer."

VIENTIANE — An unidentified 19-year-old neutralist guard confessed he assassinated Quisim Pholsena because the left-leaning Laotian foreign minister "wanted to overthrow the coalition government."

COBBOURG, Ont. — Fire Chief Walter Scott, 82, of Galt, Ont., collapsed and died while attending the funeral of Cobourg's fire chief Ken Baird, 47.

OTTAWA — The Supreme Court of Canada rejected the appeal of prominent Hamilton, Ont., surgeon Dr. John Lacroix.

No Deaths In Oregon?

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The judiciary committee of the Oregon senate has voted 8-1 in favor of abolishing the death penalty. The committee recommended a measure for the 1964 general election ballot.

Canadians Snub Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. J. J. Green, president of the Canadian Aeronautics and Space Institute, says the performance of Canada's Alouette satellite "has been appreciated everywhere but in Canada."

He said the Alouette proved one of the most successful satellites launched anywhere, but there was little recognition of the achievement in Canada.

Dr. Green said the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration has invited Canada to participate in an extended program of ionospheric research as a direct result of the Alouette's success.

Race Not Worth Risk

Man in Moon False Prophet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the U.S. manned space flight body told congressmen Tuesday it would be foolish to squander money or risk human lives in a crash program to make an American first man on the moon.

D. Brainerd Holmes told a House of Representatives science and astronautics subcommittee a moon landing is not the prime goal of the U.S. space program.

He said the U.S. can achieve its scientific aims — and in effect win the space race — even if the Soviet Union is first with a manned moon flight. He said he has never seen a sound program "triggered only by what the other fellow was doing."

QUEBEC — A royal commission of inquiry into the publishing industry in Quebec was announced by Pierre Laporte, acting cultural affairs minister, in hopes of finding a solution to the industry's problems.

He said the Russians will have to develop much bigger launch vehicles than they have disclosed so far in order to send a manned mission to the moon.

Holmes, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's office of manned space flight, said

Bomarc Befuddled

THE LIBERAL PARTY'S argument that Canadian Bomarc missiles need only be equipped with nuclear warheads to become effective in defending Canada and the United States against aerial attack has been conclusively destroyed by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara who stated last week that one of the major uses of the Bomarc bases was to draw enemy ballistic missile fire in the event of war.

For some time now Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been telling the country that the Bomarc missile is obsolescent inasmuch as it can no longer do the job for which it was originally intended. Liberal leader Lester Pearson, in an awkward attempt to recover from Mr. McNamara's knockout blow to his party's nuclear policy, now tries to blame the Conservative government for this.

The fact is, of course, that when Canada agreed to install two Bomarc bases at the insistence of the U.S. government, the Bomarc was considered the best anti-aircraft weapon available.

It was only after the Canadian government accepted the responsibility of building the bases as part of its responsibility under NORAD that the U.S. Department of Defence changed its views on the effectiveness of the missile. Mr. Melvin Conant, a fellow of the American Council on Foreign Relations and former member of the faculty of the U.S. National War College, makes this clear in his recently published work on the defence of North America: "The Long Polar Watch," now considered the most comprehensive textbook on Canada's role in the defence of this continent.

"As a matter of fact," he writes, "almost immediately after Canada's adoption of the Bomarc, the U.S. Department of Defence settled a long-standing dispute by cutting back drastically its programmed expenditures for the further development and production of the Bomarc."

The reasons why the U.S. government suddenly changed its mind regarding the Bomarc have only comparatively recently emerged. The first of these is that the Bomarc failed a high rate of failures in its tests; the second (and far more serious) was that missile technology has completely overtaken the Bomarc to render it today as useful as a sledgehammer against a battleship. Bigger and better air-to-air, ground-to-air and air-to-ground guided rockets have now been invented and are already in the mass production stage in both the United States and Russia.

A very explicit instruction, undoubtedly, except when there was no third line and troops went on and never came back.

ONE thing will remain in my mind when the election campaign is over, to wit: the discouragement of election life. They say a prophet seldom has honor in his own country. The same could be said of prime ministers.

A PM should command a respect all others lack, simply by virtue of the position he has held and still holds. His opponents have the privilege of suggesting he should be replaced, and the voters can affect this or not as they see fit.

But reference to a prime minister should bear some awareness of the dignity due to him as the leader of the nation.

Mr. Diefenbaker, I think, has been subjected to personal impropriety and insult that is beyond his deservings. There seems to be a malice at work that is disgusting.

IT WAS interesting to note that R.C. winners of the Irish sweepstakes mean to carry on as though life hadn't changed.

Whatever you read about inheritance or an unexpected piece of good luck, one thing is clear; most of them don't go to the devil nor are their morals impugned. This is the charge voiced so often by group opponents of lotteries and the like, but it doesn't hold water. If it did civilization would have crumbled long before this.

What a sweeping win does mean the burden for those who win comes up to bring them good fortune. It enables them also to share with people in need, as appears to be the aim of some of the latest Irish winners.

But in essence they remain unchanged. They are still the people they were before they had a winning ticket.

THE organized attempt to prevent Liberal leader Lester Pearson from being heard Monday night at the Vancouver Forum, however, like the similar rowdy demonstration that curtailed Prime Minister Diefenbaker's address in the same auditorium in the 1962 election campaign, was something else again—something that must generally be regarded with anger, and in Vancouver with shame although that city cannot truly be held at fault for these disgraceful occurrences.

It is in the democratic tradition that every person offering to serve in public office has the right to be heard, no matter what his or her party's views or policies or promises; this is only fair to candidate and to the voting public alike. The bulk of the audience that went to the Forum to hear Mr. Pearson, and of the audience that last June went to hear the prime minister, were deprived by irresponsible minorities of obtaining at first hand and in full the messages of those two party leaders, which as Mr. Pearson said was a negation of the democratic process.

Now did the demonstrators serve their own purpose to advantage, if this were primarily to emphasize the ban-the-bomb theme, as it appeared to be. One cannot believe that the scene of pandemonium in the current instance was designed by thinking and sincere opponents of nuclear weapons. More likely the red and the fanatic fringes of this element were at work. But the shadow inevitably extends over the whole issue.

Thus no one has gained except those who would promote disorder for disorder's sake.

Dodging It

LOCAL LIBERAL candidate David Groos has declined to meet Independent candidate Foster Iserwood in debate. Candidates are always free to accept or decline such a challenge but the reason given is none too valid.

It is that Mr. Iserwood is not the nominated candidate of a recognized political party. Neither he is but his status is nevertheless beyond quibble. By the accepted election rules he is a recognized contender for a seat in Parliament. Independents have a duly legitimate place in the political scene and the same election rights as all other candidates.

Perhaps Mr. Groos has cause to fear lest the man he displaced as official Liberal standard-bearer should outshine him.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."
By TOM TAYLOR

NO ONE wore a kilt, and that made me sorry, but I take off my hat to the Canadian's marathon marchers. They astonished me. To walk 50 miles, or even half that distance, no matter how long it takes, is in these days something of a phenomenon. Canadian legs are not, after all, about ready to drop off.

The walkathon was a stirring rebuttal of the idea that everyone needs a car to get to the next block, and shows that in this town at least—and its environs—walking is not yet a lost art.

I am a bit sorry now I didn't have a shot at it myself, even if I had tottered home in the dark. And, of course, my friends' gift sponsor has been left in the wrapper.

A BRITISH general died recently and his obituary suggested that though he led an army not one soldier in a hundred knew he was the commander.

This had reference to the First World War, which in some respects could be called the "unknown war." Meaning that most of those involved didn't know what battlefield aims were all about.

Until peace came and they read the strategy in the history books.

The last war was different, I judge, and the troops were well briefed in their operations. They also knew their generals when they saw them.

Mostly in 1914-18 the troops never saw them, let alone knew their names, and their briefing could take the form, for instance, of an order to go over the top, jump the first two lines of enemy trenches and stop at the third.

A very explicit instruction, undoubtedly, except when there was no third line and troops went on and never came back.

ONE thing will remain in my mind when the election campaign is over, to wit: the discouragement of election life. They say a prophet seldom has honor in his own country. The same could be said of prime ministers.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARE

RECENT news showed an important gathering in Moscow at which the chosen lords of that nation were speaking, and at which parades of stiff-necked marionettes by the slug lens of thousands beamed in the wake of enormous tanks spiked with giant rockets.

Frankly, it was impressive.

The cameras panned over to the military men arrayed on the triumphal dais. They were applauding, too.

"Notice," said one of us watching the newscast, "how the Russians applaud. See how emphatically they clap their hands together. They applaud more enthusiastically than any other race."

But most of all, notice how high they hold their hands when clapping. Away up in front of their faces. See how their eyes swirl from side to side, as they clap. It appears to me that in Russia it is not only necessary to applaud, and to applaud energetically, it is necessary, also, to be seen applauding.

Vietnamese Future an Enigma

Anxiety in a Tormented Land

By JOHN STIRLING
from Saigon

OF ALL those involved in the long-drawn-out drama of Viet Nam, the most patient, and the least vocal, are the rice-farming peasants themselves. For 14 years they have watched the tramping of soldiers through their villages and fields—French Legionnaires, political-religious freebooters, Viet Minh "nationalists," Viet Cong terrorists, and now President Diem's allies and their American advisers.

No one, either in Saigon or Washington, really knows what these 12 million victims think about it all. The best guess, perhaps, is that today, as for centuries past, their policy is to "wait and see." Until they make up their mind, the future of this tormented land remains an enigma.

Hundreds of American servicemen who have completed their 12-month tour in South Viet Nam are leaving Saigon each week, and are being replaced by others fresh from the United States. By mid-June most of the 13,000 Americans who poured into this country in the first few months of 1962 will have gone home, while thousands more will be learning the complex art of advising the Vietnamese armed forces. In fact, most of the Americans—about three men in four—are busy with administration or maintenance, and have little contact with the Vietnamese service.

Less than 4,000 officers and NCOs are directly involved in the war, as advisers to Vietnamese field units, experts in training camps, or crewmen in helicopters and fighter-bombers. They are taking the brunt of America's new policy of "very deep involvement" in South Viet Nam.

Their views on the military problem, after a year's first-hand experience, are varied. They agree that the Vietnamese soldier is a good fighter. Americans who have worked with the mountain tribesmen of Central Viet Nam are even more enthusiastic. "These High Plateau boys are natural born guerrillas," one American officer declared.

But advisers at the general staff level, or in a provincial headquarters, are not so euphoric. One hears of Vietnamese senior officers who are not professionally competent, and not "dedicated." One adviser, who took part in the battle of Ap Bac (where a small body of Viet Cong terrorists held off a government column of 1,500 and put six U.S. helicopters out of action), said that most of the tactical errors were made by a provincial commander, whose main qualification is that he was loyal to President Ngo Dinh Diem during the attempted coup in 1960.

Americans in the field are too close to their own particular facet of the war to form a valid opinion about the whole anti-Communist struggle. For this, one must rely on Vietnamese and American leaders. Unfortunately, these "summit" opinions show little consistency. On the one hand, there is the confident pronouncement of General Paul D. Harkins, the senior American commander in South Viet Nam, that "1963 will be the year of decision." At the other extreme is the view of a group of American senators, headed by Mr. Mike Mansfield, that "Viet Nam now appears to be, as it was seven years ago, only at the beginning of a beginning in coping with its grave inner problems."

South Viet Nam's head of state declares that victory is not only certain, but "imminent." However, this has been President Ngo Dinh Diem's attitude for the last six years. In Saigon, Vietnamese officials admit that they have no real idea how long the struggle will continue. Like every war in history, this one is shrouded in layer upon layer of propaganda. South Viet Nam insists that the Viet Cong guerrillas are an alien force, led by North Vietnamese, who are presiding over the tramping of their ranks by threats and black-mail. Communist North Viet Nam proclaims that the guerrillas are a "People's Army," fighting the neo-colonialism of the "American-Diem clique."

Amid the charges and counter-charges, some authentic facts need to be distinguished. The Viet Cong regular force of about 25,000 and their regional troops of about 50,000 are recruited almost entirely from the villages of South Viet Nam. Some of the leaders have been trained in the north, but they number less than one per cent of the whole.

The "regional" carry weapons dating from the French war in Indo-China, while the regulars are equipped with captured American arms. In short, the war in South Viet Nam is home-grown. It will be won or lost in the rice fields of the Mekong delta and the tribal villages of the High Plateau. In little more than 12 months, 4,000 hamlets have been surrounded by barbed wire, sharpened bamboo splines but only recently has it been translated into day-to-day policy. For more than six years, American aid has been so administered that it has benefited the Saigon business community, rather than the villages; American military advice emphasized the conventional army, while actually assisting the building-up of counter-guerrilla forces. Senator Mansfield referred to this in his report, when he commented: "... The government of Viet Nam and our policies, particularly in the design and administration of aid, must bear a substantial, a very substantial, share of the responsibility."

The new policy in South Viet Nam is to "de-escalate" the whole range of government activity. In the administration of civilian aid, the prime unit is now the hamlet; in military operations, it is the platoon or company. The most dramatic evidence of the changed attitude is the building of "strategic hamlets" throughout the country. In little more than 12 months, 4,000 hamlets have been surrounded by barbed wire, sharpened bamboo splines

Those Computers

They're Moody

By CAMERON from London

I AM not very much in favor of computers and all those gadgety machines that have made IBM the most formidable corporation in the world. I first took fright against International Business Machines when, not so long ago, I was shown the biggest computer in the world.

It lives underground at Offutt Air Base in Omaha, Nebraska, where Strategic Air Command has its subterranean citadel from which World War Three—if it comes—will be launched or defended.

The purpose of this computer is to decide in a few split seconds whether a few radar shadows received up near the North Pole mean that the Russian missiles are streaming on their way to Detroit, New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles and other American war nests.

This machine at Offutt Air Base is about the size of a small house. It is rented to SAC at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. It is attended by selected IBM acolytes who know the duties of their high priest-hood when doing their rites around this, the most alarming piece of machinery in the world.

To use their terrible technical jargon, "all the relevant data, from echoes to temperatures, from dispersals to enemy intent, from overkill capacity to aerial guidance" are "fed in" to the monstrous IBM job-to-be-done" the right answer.

The right answer means that we will all be incinerated in this country if the nuclear technicians between the Kremlin and the White House get much worse than irritable.

But the thing you have to watch for is the built-in fallibility of these giant computers. The bigger they get the moodier they are. They have nervous breakdowns.

Not long ago, one of America's largest publishers of magazines installed a super-duper-computer which, fed with a handful of volts and a sprinkling of payroll, dealt with the company's accounts.

They gave the brute the gruff and at Christmas time it solemnly handed out scores of bonus cheques to people who had not worked for the company for many years.

The proprietors kicked the computer and asked the technical witchdoctors in to deal with the twitching, spiky, fairy god-mother.

The boys went to work with their screwdrivers and programmed the machine cured of its prodigious habits.

That's why you've got to watch that machine in Omaha, which may give you a miff, a hot water bottle, a packet of crisps or the last and the biggest and the most unwelcome send off of all time.

"In Russia, abstract art is condemned as capitalist art. In this country, it's condemned as Communist art. Why don't artists seek asylum in a neutral country?"

Bleak Prospect

By MARQUE CHILDS

WITH the U.S. Congress about to take what one cynical member describes as a recess within a recess, the prospect for legislation in major fields where the need has long been recognized is bleak indeed.

One of these fields is education. A jurisdictional tangle over aid to medical education has put a new obstacle in the way of what seemed to have the most promise—loans or grants, and perhaps both, to colleges and universities. With two powerful committee chairmen contending for their respective rights, those who oppose any legislation, such as wily Howard Smith presiding over the rules committee, have a perfect opening.

What is most striking is the fact that the alarm of only five or six years ago over the public schools has seemed to fade away. It is as if the problem of overcrowding, underpaid and overworked teachers, antiquated and even dangerous school buildings had by some unseen force been solved.

But what has happened, in the view of knowledgeable observers, is that out of frustration with repeated failure to make any progress, the whole question of the deteriorating American educational system has been swept under the rug. Flashed by the religious controversy, legislators have shunted the challenge of aid to elementary and secondary schools into the background. Apparently in the conviction that out of sight out of mind all except a few conscientious members of Congress are content to let it stay there.

But a new National Committee for Support of the Public Schools has come into being with the aim of getting attention focused on a condition that has, if anything, worsened in the years in which a solution has seemed to recede. Made up of more than 500 members in 45 states, the goal is not any particular piece of legislation nor even federal aid as such.

A two-day session to be held here soon will try to dramatize the threat to America's future in what the committee chairman, Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, has called an educational system "geared to our industrial era." Covering a wide political spectrum, the committee is analyzing the complex difficulties that stand in the way of adequate school support as the burden of an ever-increasing property tax has produced in some communities a taxpayers' revolt.

If one word could sum up the hopes of those who believe that a new effort must be made for the schools it might be that magic word "consensus." For 15 years the search for a consensus on aid to education has gone on. It goes back to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who had his own formula and pushed it with the vigor he brought to every enterprise he supported.

President Eisenhower wistfully sought a consensus and he had the energetic assistance of Marion B. Folsom, his secretary of health, education and welfare, widely acknowledged to have been the most effective individual to have served in that post since its creation nearly 11 years ago. Folsom, who returned to a top executive position in Eastman Kodak at the end of the Eisenhower administration, is a participant in the new effort to alert the public opinion to an awareness of what a declining school system means.

At the start of the current year President Kennedy sent to Congress a lengthy message on education, with a proposal for an omnibus bill covering all forms of federal aid. This had been prepared under the direction of the new United States commissioner of education, Francis Keppel.

On the theory that a half or a third of a loaf is better than none, the House has united the education package sent up by the president. Rep. Edith Green, chairman of the subcommittee considering federal aid to education, has also introduced a bill for vocational education. But that is at present the outermost limit of hope.

In a session that Republicans are already saying will far outstrip the do-nothingism of Harry Truman's "Eighty-fourth" Congress, a consensus on anything is hard to find. Military appropriations, even beyond those requested by the administration, get an unquestioning consent which is translated into votes with an almost automatic response. Almost in the space race Congress appears willing to go along with little or no question.

From the present perspective that is just about it. But there are citizens across the country convinced that, if only the need can be brought to full public view, an outpouring of public opinion will work its way on Congress.

Highway Companies Pressed for Debts

By TERRY HAMMOND
B.C. highways comptroller A. E. Rhodes testified before a legislative committee yesterday there is nothing unusual in the highways department pressing contractors to pay their debts.

He told the committee investigating serious accusations against Highway Minister Gagliardi and his department hardly a week passes without a creditor writing for help in collecting an account.

It might have been he who suggested to an official of Union Contractors Ltd., the company should discharge a $6,702 debt owed by Vincent Gresty.

In allegations which sparked the probe, Montana contractor Dick Hotzworth charged the debt had been paid at the request of Mr. Gagliardi and the minister had promised Union Contractors would be "well taken care of" as a result.

Earlier testimony has linked Mr. Gresty to Mid City Construction Co., a sub-contractor on controversial Project 819, while he was still a mechanical superintendent for the highways department.

Yesterday a Vancouver chartered accountant, William Myhill-Jones, testified he regarded Mr. Gresty as the chief negotiator for Mid City when the firm negotiated a $7,500 loan from Herbert H. Gillespie of Vancouver.

GILLESPIE LOAN
The $7,502 debt paid off on Mr. Gresty's behalf by Union Contractors arose from the Gillespie loan.

Mr. Rhodes told the committee it was he who telephoned to Clyde Thornton of Union Contractors to bring to his attention the fact Mr. Gillespie was pressing the department for assistance in recovering the money.

He said Union was the prime contractor on the project and he undoubtedly asked Mr. Thornton to look into the matter as the department held no funds owing directly to Mid City.

In such cases, he said, "We feel that we have, perhaps, a moral obligation."

CALL BY RHODES
Mr. Thornton testified some days ago it was Mr. Rhodes who called him and he told the comptroller Union Contractors owed Mid City sufficient money to pay the Gresty obligation.

Mr. Rhodes told the committee he had made several inquiries through the provincial registrar of companies to determine if Mr. Gresty was actually a shareholder in any construction companies.

DREW A BLANK
At least one inquiry was made at the request of the highways minister. But the checks always drew a blank.

He said Mr. Gresty resigned from the department about 1960.

Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Myhill-Jones both testified they knew of no impropriety on the part of the minister in connection with repayment of the loan.

WOMAN TO TESTIFY
The hearing continues today at 2 p.m. and is scheduled to hear testimony from Mrs. Gresty—the woman alleged to have been paid $550 a month by a Project 819 contractor as an organizer in Mr. Gagliardi's Kamloops church.

The committee yesterday voted to have another try at persuading a key figure in the allegations, Burton Lyndbarger, to return to B.C. from the U.S. to testify.

He refused an earlier invitation with the remark he would not testify before a "misleading committee."

Skidmore Rites Friday
A Victoria woman who would have been 103 April 21 will be buried Friday.

Mrs. Josephine Mary Skidmore, who arrived in B.C. as a bride of 18, died Monday. Born in Godalming, Surrey, she came to B.C. as the bride of the late Percy Brown. Her second husband, Isaac Skidmore, died in 1914.

Mrs. Skidmore taught music until she was 70 and was an active member of the LODGE and of Christ Church Cathedral. A long-time resident of Victoria and Salt Spring Island, Mrs. Skidmore lived at Rose Manor, 857 McClure, since 1947.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Friday at Hayward's chapel. Burial will be at Royal Oak cemetery.

Douglas Belief:

U.S. Money Behind Grits

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday he believes the Liberal "war chest" for election campaign costs has been heavily supported by U.S. money.

He told a press conference it is his personal belief that Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. corporations have made big donations to the Liberal fund.

"These are the indications I get," he said in reply to a question.

Mr. Douglas said the Liberals obviously have a lot of money for this campaign "and it has turned out to be more a liability than an asset."

PUBLIC RELATIONS
Some of the money had been used to hire big public relations companies. These felt they had to do something to earn their money and came up with "Madison Avenue gimmicks like the truth squad, coloring books and the like."

Nuclear Debate Refused
QUEBEC (CP)—The Union Nationale opposition Tuesday was defeated in an attempt to set aside discussion of a government bill on the nuclear arms issue could be debated.

Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson said it was urgent that the assembly discuss the nuclear arms question before next Monday's federal election.

DEBATE ASKED
The issue cropped up when Francis Boudreau (UN—St. Sauveur) asked that debate of a government bill to buy a bridge be adjourned so that the House could debate the Union Nationale motion against storage of nuclear weapons in Quebec.

QUET NABBLE
But the debate on Mr. Boudreau's suggestion bogged down in a long, generally quiet battle over House rules.

The opposition appealed Speaker Richard Hyde's ruling that the arms motion could not be mentioned and lost 48 to 29.

Politics at Work

Three Choices Open

By RON POULTON

When it was first devised, democracy looked as foolproof as any system could be. People wanted the vote so they fought for it. Differing parties were born to give them a choice. Good government then became a matter of the balance of votes.

Responsible government means the party in power must resign if it isn't supported by the majority of members in the House of Commons. In essence it is responsible to the majority of the people.

This is the first of a three-part series on how Canada's political system works.

But if democracy is to work the people must also accept responsibility. They do this by voting.

Monday, Canadians will be voting in the fourth general election within six years. This responsible government has become a will-o'-the-wisp in Canada?

Some say the presence of four national parties confuse the issue. But when democracy first came to Canada, people were so politically enthusiastic they raised seven parties.

By Confederation only two were dominant—Whigs (Liberals) and Tories (now Progressive Conservatives). Canada had entered a time of strong parties in power with strong goals applied by the opposition party.

Canada has since swung again: a sign, perhaps, that away from the two-party system did not improve either of the old line parties.

Three choices are open again: a majority government, where a party wins enough seats—134—to control voting in the House of Commons; a minority government, where the winning party gets a bare plurality, or a coalition, rule by a merging of parties, usually on a temporary basis.

Parliamentary authorities agree majority government with a strong opposition is the most desirable.

Coalitions are stopgap at best. They blur party identities, weaken the sense of responsibility, dissatisfy voters because they get less than they bargained for on the ballot.

Mr. Syme, in a letter to Mr. Castonguay earlier this month charged Horodyski was influenced by the Progressive Conservative Party in the appointment of deputy returning officers.

Mackling, in his submission at a special inquiry ordered by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay, suggested that an offense against the Canada Elections Act had been committed by the returning officer.

Mr. Syme, in a letter to Mr. Castonguay earlier this month charged Horodyski was influenced by the Progressive Conservative Party in the appointment of deputy returning officers.

OTTAWA (CP)—Premature count of votes in an advance poll in Berthier-Maskinonge-Deleauville in the April 8 federal election was reported Tuesday by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay.

The deputy returning officer and poll clerk involved are being dismissed without pay.

NOT A LOSS
He also said the Liberal call for a stable government is not costing the NDP voting support.

A minority government appeared certain after April 8 and the New Democrats were prepared to back the biggest group in the Commons if it came up with measures to spur the economy and reduce unemployment.

This would require a conference to decide what was needed and draw up a priority list for legislation. Chances would be tried in the Commons rules to speed the legislative process, he said.

The Canadian Cancer Society last year distributed in Canadian schools 67,235 pamphlets which described the relation between lung cancer and smoking. It also provided for the schools 1,848 films and 1,500 film strips.

Suddenly My Memory Failed Me!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and work like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this series with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it.

No obligation. Simply send your request to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 4984, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest and must be less than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

In your report of the public hearing into a rezoning application in the Fairfield district you stated that: "Frank Crocker, 1786 Fairfield Road, presented a petition signed by 58 residents of the immediate area."

City council promptly agreed to give the matter further study.

In the Saanich public hearing into a rezoning application in Cadboro Bay, a petition signed by nearly 1,000 residents of the immediate area was presented. Municipal council, with the creditable exceptions of Reeve Murphy and Councillor Todd, ignored it.

In Victoria, city council moves promptly to protect the interests of 58 people. In Saanich, 1,000 are contemptuously ignored.

Comparisons, of course, are traditionally odious; but the first person to remark this must surely have been contemplating a very similar situation when he coined that famous phrase.

PETER CORLEY SMITH,

The Busy Season

It seems to me that many companies, the Chamber of Commerce, the Unemployment Insurance Commission, etc., spend a lot of money in the papers and elsewhere urging people to get work done in the winter months. This I believe is mainly to keep labor busy in what is known as the "off season."

Now that the busy season for all construction workers, etc., is upon us—who is commensurate to build a new office building? Why, of course, the unions. Doesn't make sense to me.

AMAZED? NOT REALLY.

Eagle's Eggs

With reference to the story of robbing the eagle's nest of three eggs, may I say that bald eagles, along with all other predators, their nests and eggs, are protected by law in British Columbia.

In my opinion, which I regret not having the power to enforce, the wildlife official who gave permission for this vandalism should be censured, and the maximum penalty imposed on the perpetrator himself.

What scientific purpose there is in raising eagles in captivity is entirely beyond my knowledge or imagination.

The eagle, of all birds; the eagle, whose numbers are diminishing each year; the eagle, whose very name is symbolic of freedom.

A. R. DAVIDSON,

Sweepstake Farce

Still the discredited farce goes on. If a citizen of Canada initiates a sweepstake in this country he and the printer of the tickets will be prosecuted and fined.

But the winners of foreign lotteries, who quite obviously have broken the law, seem to be quite immune. Why? What are attorneys general, provincial and federal, doing?

Calm Consideration

We are being urged by different parties in the present campaign to vote for an absolute majority. Is not this putting expediency before principle? Would it not be better if every voter would calmly and dispassionately consider the actions, platforms and principles of the contending parties and then decide for himself what he would consider to be in the best interests of the people at large?

It may be objected that this individualism would lead to governmental confusion. Well, as Emerson says, "Things refuse to be mismanaged long," and mistakes cry out for rectification. Anyhow we might well be guided by the truism of Tennyson that:

"Because right is right to follow right

Is wisdom in the scorn of consequence."

Imported Car Boom Due

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Importers of British and foreign cars are looking forward to a business revival following the removal of surcharges that will bring the average imported car down by between $100 and $200 a unit.

Since the 10 per cent surcharge went into effect last June, imported cars have been a drag on the market, and many potential buyers rather than pay the extra in surcharges chose instead the Canadian-built compacts selling at roughly the same price as the average import.

SHORT SUPPLY

The fly in the ointment is that some leading imported lines are in fairly short supply on the Canadian market.

H. J. La Sheffield, Canadian manager of British Motor Corp., says that unless he can get through some rush orders from Britain, Austin and Morris cars will be in short supply.

Mr. Sheffield said Canadians were holding back from purchase of imported cars because they did not want to pay the high price and then find the surcharge withdrawn a few days later.

BACK IN BUSINESS

"We shall now be back in business and spring is our good time," trilled Mr. Sheffield.

Foreign Aid Cut Asked By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy Tuesday asked Congress to trim next year's U.S. foreign aid program to $4,500,000,000, down $420,000,000 from his original request, and said he will call on other industrialized countries to step up their own contributions to the world's less fortunate regions.

His request was in line with recommendations of a special presidential committee headed by Gen. Lucius Clay which suggested Canada and other industrialized countries could easily increase their own assistance.

field, but his view, and that of other importers, is that there may not be enough cars in stock to meet the demand. Here are some sample west coast cuts in prices of imported cars announced this week: Austin A80 is down $165; MG Sports down $120; Triumph 1200 down $130; TR4 down $199; Sunbeam Alpine down $235; Volkswagen down $160.

AIR TRAVEL DOWN

What's the explanation? Local air traffic officials are complaining that air travel by Victoria people is on the decline. Figures for cross-Canada, overseas and U.S. journeys from Victoria are down from a year ago. Nobody seems to know why.

Queried on the point, E. G. Mooney, TCA sales manager, said there was no obvious answer. "Business in the city is good—as good as it has ever been, but there don't seem to be so many distance travellers about."

SURPRISE BY HOME

Home Oil Co. had a surprise for its shareholders Tuesday when it announced the payment of a ten per cent stock dividend on its A and B class shares, and an initial dividend of 25 cents on its B shares. Since July 1, 1956, Home Oil has been paying half yearly dividends of 12½ cents on its A shares, but up to now no payments have been made on the B.

The stock dividends will be of one new share for each 10 shares held.

Following the announcement, Home A and B shares rose about 1½ points.

COMITLY STRIKE

A strike which affected the operations of its road haulage operations, was the cause of lower earnings in 1962 for Canada Steamship Lines Ltd.

T. R. McLagan, president, said what promised to be a good year was marred by a costly strike in the road transport operations with the result that losses were incurred by Kingsway Transport, a CSL subsidiary.

As a result, Canadian Steamship Lines net profit in 1962 dropped 4.5 per cent to $5,126,540 ($3.60 a share) compared with $5,361,699 ($3.82).

Jobless Fund Flows On

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment insurance fund weathered March and entered April with "several" millions of dollars in the kitty to meet benefit payments, reliable sources said Tuesday.

This means the fund did not need the $25,000,000 emergency loan earmarked by the last Parliament for emergency use if the fund went dry during the 1962-63 fiscal year that ended Sunday.

It also means that Governor-General's warrants will be used to keep the fund going until the summer upturn in employment starts to bring in more money in contributions than is paid out in benefits.

Officials decline to predict just when the fund—which held more than $800,000,000 in 1956—will run dry and require an injection of emergency federal funds.

But some time in the next few days, the fund will be operating on money borrowed from the federal treasury—money that will have to be paid back at current rates of interest.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

The hockey dynasty Montreal Canadiens built and maintained for more than a decade has apparently crumbled, as all dynasties eventually must, but there is ample evidence to indicate that in the National Hockey League it hasn't been so much that the other six clubs have built up to Canadiens as it is that Canadiens have come back to the other clubs.

That the Canadiens have failed to win the Stanley Cup for the past two years and are likely to do without it this year as well as last, looking as low as third place for the first time in 12 seasons is cited by many as proof that the other clubs are beginning to catch up to the once all-powerful Montreal club.

Nothing, I believe, could be further from the truth. There isn't a club in the NHL today which would have stood much of a chance against the Montreal club which in 11 seasons between 1951/52 and 1961/62 won the league championship six times, finished second five times and won the Stanley Cup five times—in a row—in getting to eight finals. It has to be that the Canadiens have gone back.

And who can reasonably argue that they haven't gone back? Maurice Richard retired in 1960 and Doug Harvey went to New York a season later. No team could fall to miss two such super-stars but Canadiens won the league championship in 1961 and 1962. The decline didn't really set in until Bernie Geoffrion and Dickie Moore, two greats who labored in the shadow of Richard and Harvey, got the lower injuries which, along with advancing years, has drastically reduced their effectiveness and goalie Jacques Plante began to get his periodic miseries.

With the elder Richard and Harvey gone and Geoffrion, Moore and Plante handicapped as well as being past their prime, the Canadiens just have to be considerably weaker than when they were undoubted rulers of the NHL. Yet, but for injuries, they still would have been good enough to win a sixth straight league title this year. They lost fewer games than any other club, scored the most goals, lost the Vezina Trophy in the last five periods of the season and had a chance to remain champions until the last week.

This they did although Billy Hicke and Ralph Backstrom were the only two players able to play every game. Phil Goyette missed the last 38 games. Tom Johnson, their steady defenseman, missed 27 games. Geoffrion missed 14 and showed the effect of his injury in as many more games. Plante had to be replaced in 14 games; Moore didn't begin to get over his injuries until the latter part of the season and Jean Beliveau played with a sore wrist which so affected his shooting that he wound up with only 17 goals, the first time in the six full seasons he has been able to put in that he was below 22 goals.

This kind of an injury toll had to make Canadiens the spottier performers they were this season but in the few games in which nearly every one in the lineup was healthy, they still looked like the best. They are obviously no longer going to dominate the NHL but winning them off as contenders may be a risky supposition.

Toronto Maple Leafs currently look like the league's contender club but they have their problems. They didn't become contenders until the 1959/60 season—the season Detroit Red Wings literally gave them Red Kelly. But Kelly will be 36 in July, goalie Johnny Bower is said to be 38 and thought to be older and Al Stanley, who has been a stalwart on defense, is nearing 37. The Leafs have Dave Keon and Frank Mahovlich, who has ability but is a bit of problem, but they haven't depth of real good talent.

And the same can be said about the other clubs. Chicago Black Hawks have excellent players in Glenn Hall, Stan Mikita, Pierre Plante, Bobby Hull and Elmer Vasko but they go as Hull goes and Hull, despite his great scoring, hasn't shown consistent leadership. Detroit Red Wings still have Gordie Howe, but Howe is 35, Terry Sawchuk about through and Marcel Pronovost, perhaps the most underrated player in the NHL, is approaching his 33rd birthday. New York Rangers and Boston Bruins may be slightly improved but they have a long way to go and they, too, have age where it will hurt the most—Andy Bathgate, Gump Worsley, Dean Prentice, Leo Bolvin, Harry Howell and Warren Godfrey are all past their 30th birthday and Doug Harvey may have played his last season.

It does look as if the NHL has almost reached that interesting balance all leagues hope to get but it wasn't reached in the desired manner. Canadiens came back to the field. This is perhaps preferable to domination by one club but it may indicate we aren't producing as many good hockey players as in the past and brings the thought that it is far past the time when we should have more than six major league clubs. Expansion will create the job opportunities which eventually produce more good talent.

City Fighters Get Victories

VANCOUVER — Two members of Victoria's London Boxing Club won bouts here Saturday in Norburn Athletic Club's fight card.
Tommy Black knocked out Heinz Koehler of Norburn in the second round, and Danny McDonald declared Clint Page of the host club.
Charles Forscutt of Victoria lost a decision to Dick Finlay of Norburn in the novice class.

of seven semi-final Stanley Cup playoffs.
The Canadiens, paced by Gilles Tremblay's two power-play goals, carried the series to Toronto Thursday night for a fifth game at least with an attack that smothered the Maple Leafs.

The game was played before a crowd of 14,084.

A fourth Montreal goal by Billy Hicke with Toronto again short-handed — was disallowed by referee Frank Udvard who ruled his whistle had blown before the little Montreal winger jammed the puck by Toronto goalie Johnny Bower.

The Leafs were a vastly changed club from the crew that swept the opening three games. There were raging holes in their defence. They yielded at least a half-dozen breakaways to Montreal and it was only Bower's sharp work that prevented the Canadiens from mounting up the score.

CORTLY SENTENCES
Toronto's George Armstrong was in the penalty box for tripping Richard when Tremblay got his first goal to send Montreal ahead 2-1 in the second period and Frank Mahovlich was sitting out a minor for cross-checking Terry Harper when Tremblay popped his second for insurance in the final period.

His first goal — at the 14-minute mark, 14 seconds after Armstrong was waved off — was unassisted and of a freckish nature.

THIRD FAME

He tried to pass the puck out from the corner and it was apparently tipped behind Bower by Toronto defenseman Carl Brewer.

His second came from a face-off in the Toronto zone four seconds later.

Pension for Queenie Not Job Insurance

Queenie, the Beacon Hill Park horse which the city plans to retire, should be given unemployment insurance, Jim Cousins, 1121 Catalina, said yesterday.

"As a middle-aged man who is out of work through this machine age I have a lot of sympathy for Queenie being replaced by a mule or cart," he said.

City parks chairman Ald. Millard Mooney announced that Queenie will be pensioned off and will remain in the park pen as a tourist attraction.

Chatterton:

Pearson Avoiding Arms Stand in Ads

Liberal leader Lester Pearson is carefully avoiding any mention of nuclear arms in large advertisements about his party's policy, George Chatterton, Conservative candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, told a meeting of 20 persons in Brentwood Women's Institute Hall last night.

"He's soft-pedalling this issue and I wouldn't be surprised to see him change his position again on the issue as he has done once already," Mr. Chatterton said.

He pointed out that Liberal policy last year was against Canada accepting nuclear arms but this year the party is in favor.

Mr. Chatterton said he has urged Fisheries Minister Angus MacLean to make a survey of spring and coho salmon and promised to support Victoria Tory candidate Eric Charman's proposal that a director of sport fishing should be appointed.

Windsor Pledges Seawall Studies

Immediate resumption of studies to determine if a breakwater is feasible for Port Renfrew was promised last night by John Windsor, New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

Speaking to a public meeting of 24 persons at Jordan River community hall last night, Mr. Windsor said the breakwater was the type of project a NDP government would immediately develop through an "infusion of social capital" into the economy.

"If the breakwater is feasible, construction would not only give immediate employment, it would also permanently lift the economy of the whole region," he said.

Mr. Windsor said proposed model studies on the breakwater were stopped through the federal government's austerity campaign and promised that if he was elected he would press immediately for resumption of the work.

Need for Fiscal Reform 'Never More Apparent'

Service charges alone on Canada's national debt cost taxpayers $800,000,000 a year, Edward Lum, Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, told a public meeting last night.

"The need for financial reforms in Canada has never been more apparent," he told 15 people in McMoran's Pavilion, Cordova Bay.

"It doesn't take an expert to understand that all is not well with our economy."

"In fact, it is a paradox to have poverty and privation among even a segment of our people when we have millions of bushels of wheat in store, millions of pounds of butter surplus and millions of cans of meat with which we don't know what to do."

"It is wrong to have millions upon millions of dollars of debt in Canada, completely beyond the capacity of our people and our governments ever to repay."

Mr. Lum advocated expansion of Canada's money supply to finance Canada's economic growth, increase production and reduce unemployment.

'Campaign of Hate'

Charges that other candidates were campaigning on nothing more than party support and spreading "hate and vilification" were leveled by Victoria Conservative Eric Charman last night.

He told 75 supporters at his campaign headquarters he did not believe a candidate should campaign on party support alone but should establish some positive policy of his own to take to Ottawa.

He said opposing candidates were campaigning on nothing more than party support and spreading "hate and vilification."

He ridiculed a newspaper advertisement in which Liberal leader Lester Pearson said the Liberals would establish an all-party parliamentary committee on defence without delay, charging that the Liberal leader was doing a complete about-face.

"He's scared and doesn't know what to do," Mr. Charman said.

Isherwood Asks Reform

Parliamentary reform to establish a system which will give stable government is needed in Canada, Foster Isherwood, Independent Liberal candidate for Victoria, said last night, speaking to an audience of 16 people at Willows school in Oak Bay.

The nuclear issue was the reason for the fall of the government, but has since been passed by, he said.

The Senate should play an important role in the government, he said, and should be based on the American system, with one of the qualifications being residence.

The two major parties are not willing to work for reform and a party will get a majority when the leaders deserve it.

The NORPAC treaty should be thoroughly investigated, he said, and "we must protect our historic rights" as there could

New Workshop

Varsity Actors Sparkle

By BERT BUNNY

Victoria University's Workshop Theatre opened for the first time last night when two one-act plays were presented to a rather small audience.

The theatre is like an indoor and miniature version of the Greek amphitheatre, yet designed for flexibility in production. It is not finished but the productions certainly were.

David Buchanan and Michael Warren in The Dock Brief were superb—always believable and thoroughly consistent.

Although included in An Evening of the Absurd one could doubt the justice in calling this play absurd. The absurd indeed excites sympathy and Mr. Buchanan certainly did.

The second play was Eugene Ionesco's The Lesson, which belonged in the category of the absurd. However, it was exceptionally played by Carl Hare as the professor, by Alice Bishop as the maid and by Sally McCall as the pupil.

The program continues every evening at 8:30 p.m. through Saturday.

Woman Believed Assault Victim

An Oak Bay woman was believed to have been assaulted in the back yard of her home on Monterey Avenue early today.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unwanted fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naram Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naram Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bulky fat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Adv.

Sidney branch of the Legion and Sidney Chamber of Commerce are attempting to persuade Jerry Gossley to stage his summer Smile Show where he started during the war—at Patricia Bay.

Gray Campbell, chairman of a special subcommittee, said Mr. Gossley will visit the Legion hall adjacent to the Patricia Bay airport Wednesday night to inspect facilities.

A five-year-old boy was in fairly good condition with head injuries in Royal Jubilee Hospital after an accident at Fairview and Elery in Esquimalt Tuesday.

Gregory Shaner, 783 Fairview Road, was riding a home-made motor down Fairview Hill when he collided with a car police said was driven by Gary Earl West, 453 Cord.

Proprietor John Bous told police two young men entered his store, placed an order and handed him a $10 bill. He went to the back of the store, returned and handed them their goods and change. Later, when he went to close the till, he saw it had been rifled of between $12 and $15.

Appointment of Kenneth Lucas as assistant director, Pacific area, department of fisheries of Canada, was announced Tuesday by the director of fisheries for Pacific area, W. R. Houston.

City police say the introduction now are complete; from now on a radar check will probably lead to a summons. For the last month or so drivers checked for speeding by radar just drew warnings.

Postman M. E. A. Potter, 1625 Sheridan, told police he was delivering mail at 822 Pembroke Tuesday when a spotted grey setter dog belonging to Walter Bunt of that address attacked him, biting him several times on the left knee and right arm. Police called in the SPCA.

No stopping on the east side of Douglas between Port and Broughton has been recommended to city council to speed the flow of traffic during the afternoon rush hour.

The ban, to be in effect from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. on all days except Saturday, Sunday and holidays, was approved yesterday by the traffic committee.

DeMolay Sweetheart

Chapter sweetheart of DeMolay Signal Hill chapter is Joyce Sandilands, 18, of 3000 Quadra, installed at recent meeting with chapter officers. Elected officials include Ian Jamieson, master councillor; Wayne Morson, senior councillor; James Power, junior councillor, and Robert Botten, treasurer.—(W. A. Boucher.)

Safety Rules

Walkers: Keep Fit And Alive

Hard on the heels of renewed interest in walking as a way for Greater Victorians to keep fit, the B.C. Safety Council has announced seven rules as a way for walkers to stay alive.

"Walking is almost as dangerous as driving unless the pedestrian has his own set of safety rules," a spokesman said. His suggestions:

- Only cross the street at corners or crosswalks and keep a sharp eye out. Signal if possible.
- Don't expect cars to stop for you.
- Cars are getting more and more quiet. Look for them.
- Some drivers don't signal turns at corners.
- Don't cross a road from between parked cars.
- When you walk at night or very early in the morning, wear something light in color.
- When there's no sidewalk, walk on the left side of the road to face oncoming traffic.

Building Booms In City

First-quarter statistics released Tuesday show construction in Victoria and Saanich is off to a flying start in 1963. To date the city has issued 1,520 building permits with a total value of $2,761,156—the highest first-quarter total since 1955.

Saanich permits this year total $2,081,167 compared with $1,953,270 during the same three-month period in 1962.

MARCH TOTALS

Totals for March:
Victoria, 491 permits with a total value of $985,743 (1962, 568 for $553,677); Saanich, 117 permits with a total value of $805,071 (1962, 102 for $587,890); Oak Bay, 36 permits with a total value of $388,438 (1962, 29 for $159,904); Esquimalt, 19 permits worth $89,305 (1962, 21 for $854,080).

Meetings Today

Negro Comic Jostled In Race Row

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI) — Police manhandled comedian Dick Gregory, broke up three voter registration marches and picked up Gregory, and about 20 other Negroes in this racially tense town Tuesday.

The Negroes, who had refused police orders to disperse, were put in police cars and taken back to their voter registration headquarters where they were released. No charges were filed.

Gregory was here to aid a mass registration drive by Negro civil rights groups.

Portage Inlet

Sewage Ruling In Week

Decision of B.C. pollution control board on whether to allow Saanich council to discharge sewage effluent into Portage Inlet will likely be handed down next week.

Deputy provincial secretary Everett Brown, chairman of the pollution control board, told the Colonist he thought the decision would be made public "about the middle of next week."

Saanich council had planned to build a sewage treatment plant on Colquhoun Creek to serve the Colquhoun basin, discharging effluent into the creek and from there into Portage Inlet.

But both Victoria and Esquimalt councils opposed the plan and made strong representations to the pollution control board at hearings.

Alternative to the $1,500,000 Saanich plan is a scheme to pipe the effluent to the sea, estimated to cost $2,500,000. Saanich spokesmen said the alternative is too costly.

Story Finds Home For Jimmy

Victoria's Family and Children's Service has found a good home for 11-year-old Jimmy whose plight was highlighted by the Colonist recently.

"Everything seems to be working out very well," a spokesman for the service said yesterday. "He is staying with a woman of upright character, loving and with good sense."

The spokesman added the service is always interested in hearing from persons prepared to take care of children in similar circumstances.

Jimmy was a problem child, apparently related to some extent, and the Family and Children's Service had found it impossible to provide a home for the child until a Colonist story publicized the problem.

China to Free 3,213 Indians

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China will release the 3,213 Indian soldiers captured in last year's border fighting, the foreign ministry announced Tuesday.

It said frontier guards will entrust the Chinese Red Cross with repatriating the Indians. Releases begin April 10 in the Tibet and Sinking regions.

Wife Not Permitted To Talk for Hubby

A helpful wife tried unsuccessfully to help her foreign-born husband answer a traffic charge in city magistrate's court yesterday.

The husband was having difficulty understanding and being understood.

"I usually do his talking for him," said his wife, coming forward.

"Many wives do, madam," said Magistrate William Oatler, "but do you speak his language?"

"No, I don't," was the reply.

"Then I'm afraid we must dispense with your services," the magistrate said.

Rebuild Athletic Park?

City parks committee yesterday went on record as favoring rehabilitation of Royal Athletic Park as a joint 1967 centennial project for Greater Victoria.

"I think this should make an excellent centennial project for the whole area," said chairman Ald. Millard Mooney. "I'm ready to give it my full support."

JOINT PROJECT

Ald. A. W. Toone proposed that city council approach the other municipalities to see if agreement could be reached on the scheme as a joint project. Estimated cost is $331,000.

Parks administrator W. H. Warren told the committee Royal Athletic Park is the only park in Greater Victoria—with exception of Macdonald Park, also city owned—that provides an enclosure where a gate can be collected for an outside event.

"Investigation has shown," Mr. Warren said, "that both sportsmen and spectators get more enjoyment from the park in proportion to the size of the various municipalities." "It is hoped, therefore, that unanimous approval might be given towards making this a Canadian centennial project for the Greater Victoria area in 1967," he said.

Queen of Esquimalt To Be Accepted Today

Acceptance ceremony of the Mv. Queen of Esquimalt will take place at 12 noon today.

"Acceptance ceremonies are becoming so popular that we will bring in the Queen of Esquimalt to accommodate the people," said R. B. Worley, assistant general manager of the B.C. Government Ferries.

Several hundred persons will be taken on a cruise in the two ferries.

The Queen of Esquimalt brings to 15 the total number of ferries in the B.C. fleet, conceded to be the largest ferry fleet in the world, he said.

Bang to Open Fair

Science Students to Show Wares

Second annual Science Fair arranged by Greater Victoria high schools will open with a bang April 13.

The bang—described as a thunderous explosion by organizers—will come when Lands and Forests Minister Ray Wilkison officially opens the fair and presides a session.

Along with the explosion a welcoming sign will unfold and the first exhibit in the fair will go into action.

The exhibit is an electric eye counter fixed across the doorway into the Douglas Room at HBC, where the fair will be held.

As each person visiting the fair breaks a beam of light the counter will click up one more number.

It is one of several exhibits serving a dual purpose at the fair. Another will be a closed circuit radio station which will provide the background music.

Fifty exhibits have been arranged by students of the various schools, ranging from oscilloscopes which will let spectators see what electrical patterns their voices make to a model volcano which shoots forth smoke but no molten rock.

The students are mostly members of science fair clubs in their schools and all projects are extra-curricular activities. In many cases they are also the students' hobbies.

The carving is from a picture taken in 1866 of the Esquimalt harbor mouth showing HMS Tribune in the background. Tribune was on this station at that time.

Immediate Start for Lab

Forest Research Project for Saanich

Construction of a $2,399,000 forest research laboratory building on Burnside Road in Saanich will begin immediately, supervising architect R. J. Bickford said last night.

The T-shaped building will be 265 feet long, facing onto Burnside Road, with a two-storey administration block forming the short stem of the T-shape.

Announcement that the contract for construction has been let to Burns and Dutton Construction (1963) Limited of Richmond was made yesterday by George Chatterton, member of the last parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

The firm submitted the lowest bid of seven received by the federal works department. Highest bid was $2,512,000.

Target for completion of the building is July, 1964.

Site for the building is on Burnside Road, between the CNR tracks and Interurban Road.

The laboratory section of the building—265 feet long, 48 feet wide and three storeys high—will be built of reinforced concrete.

The administration block, 77 feet by 50 feet, will be of wood frame construction with laminated wood floors.

The building will include laboratories, a library, conference room, photographic section and service rooms. A 72-foot by 57-foot heating plant will be built apart from the main building and connected by a passageway.

Architect's drawing of $2,399,000 forest research laboratory block to be built in Saanich emphasizes 265-foot length of main part of T-shaped building. Administration offices will be housed in two-storey section. Target date for completion is July, 1964.

Dootson Trial

Victim Recalls Nothing After Going to Sleep

By DON GAIN

Robert Robinson, 65, whose extensive injuries at Colquitz Mental Home last fall resulted in the laying of an attempted murder charge, told an Assize Court jury yesterday he remembers nothing after he went to sleep a little after midnight Oct. 18 until he woke up in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Robinson was testifying at the trial of Peter Howard Dootson, a fellow employee at the mental home, who is charged with attempting to murder Robinson by striking him with a blunt instrument and setting fire to him.

Dootson spent the past week in the psychiatric ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital. An all-male jury found Monday that he was fit to stand trial.

A new all-male jury was chosen yesterday under the direction of Mr. Justice J. S. Atkins, presiding judge.

Crown prosecutor Alan Baker told the jury that the attempted murder had taken place in the staff of the mental home on Wilkinson Road.

Residents of the building heard screams and a thud about 1:40 a.m. Oct. 18, and then smelled smoke, he said.

When the staff members went to investigate, Dootson did not go into Robinson's room, Mr. Baker said. Nor was Dootson present when police questioned staff members shortly afterward.

When Robinson took the stand yesterday he told the jury he was now a patient at Gorge Road Hospital. He still shows signs of his ordeal.

He told of attending a bingo game the night of Oct. 18 and returning to his room in the staff quarters about 11 p.m.

Robinson described his room as having a single bed with mattress and sheets, a dresser, a little table on one side of the bed with a radio on it, a television set in the corner and one or two chairs.

Door Left Open

He said that, beside the radio, he had on the bedside table a pen and pencil, comb and shoehorn. He told of the bottom parts of his window being nailed closed after he had seen footprints outside his window. After that he opened his window from the top, he said.

Asked about his wallet, Robinson said it was in the inside pocket of his jacket but he didn't remember how much money was in it.

He said his door was open about a foot when he went to sleep.

"I don't remember anything after I went to sleep until I woke up in St. Joseph's Hospital," he said.

In cross-examination defence counsel Alan Bigelow asked Robinson if he had anything else on his night table. He said there might have been a magazine lying there.

How many of "your co-workers owed you money?" Mr. Bigelow asked.

"Do I have to answer that?" Robinson inquired.

When the judge told him he had to answer, Robinson said, "One owed me $75, James Catherwood. One owed me $8, Van Heck."

Dr. J. F. B. Cupples, the next witness, described Robinson's burns and wounds in detail.

The doctor said he had treated him at St. Joseph's Hospital emergency between 2 and 3 a.m. the morning of Oct. 19. The patient had third degree burns of the trunk and back, burns of the face and left ear, he said. Both arms were burned, both shoulders and neck, the left ear was badly burned and most of the scalp area, he said.

"The upper part of the ear was charred and appeared torn," the doctor testified. "There was a fracture of the left arm and bruises around the left eye."

Not Burning Alone

"It was not possible for Robinson alone to cause the burns he had," the doctor said.

Defence counsel asked Dr. Cupples if "people with no nerves in their hands" could touch something hot and not know it.

The doctor said this was possible.

When asked if it would burn the skin if it were hot enough, the doctor said it would.

Psychiatric aide Robert Paterson told the jury that he lived in Room 16 of the staff quarters.

He said he visited Robinson in his room "for approximately 30 minutes" the night in question.

"I heard the kitchen door open and put my head out of Mr. Robinson's door and saw Malcolm Grey leaving the staff quarters on his rounds with the time clock. He was down by the hallway. It was 11:29. I looked at my watch."

Paterson left 10 minutes later to go to bed, he said, leaving the door of Robinson's room ajar.

"At approximately five to two I heard lots of noise and shouting and I heard my name being called," he testified. "I put on my slippers and gown and I found the passageway filled with smoke."

Lying on Floor

"I saw men running towards Mr. Robinson's room. I went, too. I went into his room and saw him lying on the floor."

Paterson said he saw Divine (a co-worker) and Catherwood in the room. "The room was full of smoke," he said. "There was a pool of blood inside the door. The mattress was smoking. Mr. Robinson was lying behind the door."

"I first saw Mr. Dootson when I came from Mr. Robinson's room to the outside phone in the corridor. He was on the intercom phone."

"When the group was questioned by the police, did you see Dootson?" inquired Mr. Baker.

"No," Paterson replied.

When everybody was going to bed, Paterson said, he saw Dootson standing by the fire escape.

"It was about 3:10 a.m.," he said. "I walked toward him and he said what a horrible thing it was that happened. I agreed. Then he said, 'There is someone here who has a very good motive for doing this.'"

"I said 'Who?' He then nodded toward Mr. Catherwood's room," Mr. Paterson said.

Paterson testified that Dootson invited him into his room "to discuss this."

"I noticed Mr. Dootson had a bottle in the left-hand rear pocket—a liquor bottle. We both went in and sat down on his bed. We talked about Mr. Robinson's condition. Mr. Dootson said, 'Mr. Robinson looks very bad—a very bad thing for somebody to do.'"

He said Dootson was wearing brown corduroy pants and brown suede shoes.

"I looked down and there appeared to be feathers from a pillow adhering to the shoes," Paterson testified. "I went to my room and retired for the night."

Victor Borge demonstrates how an oboe player once laughed so much at one of his concerts he couldn't play his oboe. "I never encountered a bad audience. Nobody goes by chance to see my show. People who do go are people who know what to expect. There is a feeling of togetherness and freedom to laugh that I think is very important."—(Bud Kinsman)

Humor Used To Advantage

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

"If we only had time to understand one another, wouldn't it be nice," said Victor Borge last night. "That's why I like to go on stage."

The Danish-born U.S. musician and humorist had just arrived in Victoria to prepare for tonight's concert with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. in Esquimalt Sports Arena.

HAPPY PEOPLE

"After the show there are thousands of happy people, not saying unpleasant things but how much they enjoyed it and as on. They come to me and they say thank you so much. Thank you for what? I thank them for making it possible."

Did he consider himself a musician or a comedian?

"I am a musician."

"As you are dark, or blond, or tall, or small, so am I a humorist. A sense of humor is not something that is achieved; it is something that is there. It is a medium with which to create, like a painter's brush or a poet's pen."

"You can use it to heal or to make people sick; you can use it to make people angry or to make them smile; you can use it to begin revolutions or to stop revolutions. I use humor to make people laugh."

ALL FUNNY MEN

President Kennedy, Sir Winston Churchill and Premier Khrushchev can all be very funny men, he said. But in the Soviet Union "they tell them what to laugh at."

"A dictatorial system cannot survive. One of the reasons is lack of freedom to laugh."

He is different from a comedian, he said, because "what I say is not meant to be funny." It was a matter of timing and voice.

COULDN'T PLAY

He recalled how the oboe player with the Detroit Symphony once laughed so hard he couldn't play. "For the audience it's really a sight to see the orchestra become part of the audience."

"But what I do in playing with the orchestra is absolutely straight. In my concerts the audience listen to the music, they enjoy it, they get a couple of laughs in between."

"As nobody else does a show like mine, nobody can compare," he laughed. "So I'll never know whether I'm good, bad or indifferent."

Night Exercise Planned by Ship

A night ditching exercise will be carried out by the COGS St. Catharines about six miles from Brodie Ledge from 8:15 to 8 p.m. Thursday.

Cool Weather Aids Daffodils

"Recent cold weather has been perfect for the daffodil harvest," says G. A. Vandreghet.

Harvesting is just over its peak which saw up to 300 pickers in the field, he said.

Shipping will be right on time with the best crop ever and because of the cool weather the flowers have been in storage for only one week, he said.

A Personal Glimpse Of Candidates' Wives

There are many women, mostly behind the scenes of public life, working hard to make their own contribution to the public life of the country. To give the public a personal glimpse of these women the Colonist presents a series of short biographies of the wives of candidates for the upcoming election.

Jean Mooney, wife of the Social Credit candidate for Victoria, was born in Yorkton.

MRS. MILLARD MOONEY

She met her husband in Regina, where she worked with the T. Eaton Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Mooney have made their home in Victoria for 27 years, most of that time in the Fairfield district, where they live on Robertson Street.

Jean Mooney says she leaves the public life in her family to her husband.

"With my husband an alderman I enter into public life a certain amount," she says.

"But I only do it when I have to." Jean is the only candidate's wife who is a proud grandmother. Very important to her are her five grandchildren, belonging to her twin sons, Ron and Don Mooney. The twins are employed in their father's auto body repair shop.

She also has a young daughter, Doris, who is in her final year of teacher training at Victoria University.

"For relaxation I like to garden, play cards and bowl," she says.

Clubs keep Jean busy. Among organizations she belongs to is the Lions Ladies Auxiliary, of which she is vice-president. She belongs to Fairfield United Church.

MRS. ED LUM

"This is something new for me and I'm really enjoying it," says Rose Lum, wife of Ed Lum, Social Credit candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich.

Rose is accompanying her husband to all meetings and finds the experience exhilarating.

"It is good to be right in the thick of things and we are both learning a lot every day," she says.

Now, it seems to her as if they had been sitting on the fence just watching things go by in previous elections.

Rose says her husband was asked before to stand for election but refused. However, this time they both feel that as Canadians they should participate in the affairs of the country.

This candidate's wife also thinks there is a place for young men in government. Her husband is 34.

Rose Lum was born in Victoria, one of 11 children. Her father, Lee Woo, came here from Hong Kong over 80 years ago.

Growing up in a large family has its advantages, according to Rose. One of the main ones being that she learned very young how to keep busy.

"We all had to work hard to get anywhere," she says.

Ed and Rose Lum live at the Cherry Bend Motel on Patricia Bay Highway which they operate. They have four children, Glenn, 11, Janice, 9, Wendy, 7, and Mark, 4. The older children attend Gordon Head School.

Rose is very proud of being the first Chinese-Canadian to work in a bank here. She was employed for five years at the Bank of Commerce.

She is secretary of the W.A. to the Chinese Presbyterian Church, has served as a board member of the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council, is a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Lions Club and is a member-at-large of Beta Sigma Phi.

Her latest venture, besides entering into politics, is learning to crochet and she has already made 300 medallions for a tablecloth.

"Anything I tackle I have to see it finished," says this energetic young woman.

Rice and Vegetables Newest Diet in Paris

By NORA MARTIN
PARIS — Would you like to feel as chirpy as a chick for Easter?

When I met a girl friend the other day she had obviously lost weight and seemed as fit as a fiddle.

"It's my new diet," she beamed. "Actually it's old and Oriental, but it works."

Thinking that the French might have a new approach to dieting, I asked her to give me details.

All you eat is rice and vegetables, and all you drink is mint tea, I was told.

You take two meals a day, each composed of unpolished, cooked rice and vegetables fried in vegetable oil. The important point is that the meal must be composed of 70 per cent rice and only 30 per cent vegetables. As long as you keep these proportions, you may eat as much as you like of these two dishes. For seasoning, sea-salt in small quantities is permitted.

Only 10 vegetables are on the permitted list. They include carrots, leeks, turnips, endives, cabbage, cress, spinach, onions, celery and olives.

As for liquids, it is recommended to take as little as possible and never with the meals. Mint tea, made by infusing dried or fresh mint leaves in boiling water, can be substituted by China tea. Both beverages are to be taken without sugar. Coffee and alcoholic drinks are out.

If you must have something to eat in between then walnuts, almonds or hazelnuts are permitted, but in small quantities.

The diet is supposed to tone up the metabolism and give the famed "jolie de vivre."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: We have four children—two boys and two girls. The boys (18 and 17) have never caused us any trouble. They go with the same group of teenagers and get along well together.

The girls are 16 and 13. They got along fairly well (though not as well as the boys) until about two years ago. Ginger who is 16 is full of fun and has a great many friends. Debbie does better in school but she's somewhat unsuccessful socially. It is ironic that Debbie is much better looking than her older sister but not nearly as popular with either boys or girls.

Ginger has always received a great many more invitations than Debbie. I've insisted that she arrange to have Debbie invited or she must stay home, also. Lately she has become rebellious over this.

I say sisterly love is more important than any invitation, and that Ginger should not go where Debbie is not invited. We want your opinion—REFEREE.

Dear Referee: This is no way to encourage sisterly love, mother. You are creating resentment between these sisters which may well last forever.

Insist that Debbie make her own friends. Ginger should not be placed in the unattractive position of begging for an invitation for her sister. You are not being fair to either of these girls.

Dear Ann Landers: I see by our newspaper that you firmly believe prolonged mourning is unhealthy. You say it serves no useful purpose and long time mourning is really "self-pity turned inside out."

You usually make pretty good sense. I agree in this case that you are right. Now, I would like to know your views on prolonged courtship? What do you think about couples who go together for years and somehow never seem to get around to marriage?

I know of a couple who have been dating for 15 years. Is this unhealthy? My initials are the same as yours.—A.L.

Dear A.L.: It all depends on the couple. I've said it before and I'll say it again—marriage is not for everyone. Some couples "go together" like salmon and rye bread—but they are unable (for a variety of reasons) to function within the framework of marriage. For them—marriage is a disaster—and they are better off "going together."

Dear Ann Landers: I married too young like a big feet and had two boys before I was 13. My husband (if you can call him that) started to chase with an older woman. After three years of running around he asked for a divorce. I was sick of his cheating and lying, and was happy to be rid of him.

I had a wonderful opportunity to take a road job but I meant boarding out my boys. Mom and dad told me they would take the boys but only if they could adopt them legally. I agreed, seeing no other way out.

Two years have passed and I'm through with the road job and am now settled in town. My sons, I'm sorry to say, are growing up like a pair of savages. They talk back to everybody and have no manners whatever. When I correct them my father says, "Shut up. These boys are mine."

What can I do?—HEART-ACHES.

Dear Heartaches: Very little. When you allowed your parents to adopt the children you signed away your rights as a mother.

Try to get the point across to your father that the boys need discipline and must learn to respect others or they will be a problem to themselves and to everyone else. If you can enlist your clergyman's help, I heartily recommend it.

"They get cleaner as they get older."

A sidewalk symphony of springtime games

Skipping ropes chatter, roller skates clatter, bicycle bells ring-a-ling. Spring has sprung and PACKARD's perky collection of children's and pre-teen casuals are as welcome as the flowers in May. "PACKARD QUALITY" means longer wearing and smarter styling. PACKARDS are still the best shoes you can buy for your child. For durable oxfords, footwear for fun or pretty party pumps, insist on the name PACKARD. Illustrated: $6.98.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. B. Ker have returned to their home following a four-month trip to the Orient. Mr. and Mrs. Ker sailed aboard the Orlana to New Zealand, Australia and Tasmania for the Christmas Cruise. They left the ship at Colombo, Ceylon, and later flew to Delhi. Among highlights of the trip was a visit to the Taj Mahal. Mr. and Mrs. Ker then flew to Bangkok, Singapore and Hong Kong. From Hong Kong, the liner President Roosevelt took them to Manila, Japan and back to San Francisco. They arrived in Victoria by plane Saturday.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen of Tofino celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary April 1. Mr. Hansen left Trondheim, Norway, in 1905 and came to Canada after spending a year in the U.S. In 1912 he went back to Norway and the following year married, bringing his wife back to Tofino. Mr. and Mrs. Hansen have taken an active part in church and hospital affairs. Their three sons, Oscar, Alford and Walter, all live in Tofino. There are two grandchildren in Victoria, Mrs. Bruce Payne, nee Joan Nicholson, and Mr. Colin Nicholson.

Returns from New Zealand

Mrs. Alex Gillespie has just returned from a visit to her granddaughter, Mrs. John Oliver, and great-grandson, Mark Oliver, in Rangitoto Land, North Island, New Zealand. Mrs. Gillespie sailed to New Zealand aboard the Arcadia and flew home.

Parties for Mr. and Mrs. Lum

Mrs. Ray Williston, Cedar Hill Road, entertained at a coffee party Monday morning for Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lum. Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lou King gave a party at their Patricia Bay Highway home for the Lums. Mrs. Wesley Black was a coffee party hostess Tuesday morning for Mr. and Mrs. Lum when Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Robert Bonner were among the guests.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Johnson, 1214 Yates Street, announce the engagement of their younger daughter, Geraldine Rae (Geri) to Mr. John Romak, Victoria, son of Mrs. Romak, Cowen, Man., and the late Mr. Alex Romak. The wedding will take place on April 27 in St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic Church.

Sign Book in San Francisco

The following residents of Victoria have recently signed the register at British Columbia House, San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. V. Simons, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sandilands, Mr. I. R. Alton, Mrs. Margaret Carter, Mr. H. L. Alton, Mrs. B. Minky.

To Marry in April

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. R. Leman, 3014 Quadra Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Wendy Mai, to Mr. Sydney Charles Watson, son of Mrs. V. Watson, 1142 Caledonia Avenue and Mr. K. C. Watson, 530 Duncroft Street. The wedding will take place April 20 at 8 p.m. in St. Luke's Anglican Church. Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff will officiate.

The forthcoming marriage has been announced of Susan Reid, daughter of Mrs. Reid, 627 Falkland Road, and the late Vice-Admiral Howard Reid, CB, RCN, to Mr. John David Napier Edgar, son of Lt.-Col. James Edgar, MC, and Mrs. Edgar, 736 Falkland

Road. Miss Reid received her Bachelor of Arts from the University of British Columbia. Mr. Edgar graduated from the University of British Columbia with his Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Law.—(Campbells)

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes visited Salvation Army Matson Lodge yesterday afternoon. They stayed to have tea with senior residents. Mrs. Pearkes is pictured with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayres, both 89, who will celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary today. His honor is pictured talking to Mr. John Pinder, who has passed his 97th birthday. Mrs. Jenny Bremner is at back, right.—(Robin Clarke)

Married at Truth Centre

A ballerina-length gown of pale aqua blue lace over tulle was chosen by Miss Lynda Joan Tripp when she exchanged vows with Douglas Owen Skinner Saturday evening in Victoria Truth Centre.

A toning elbow-length veil of silk illusion misted from a wreath of white pearlized leaves. Red roses centred a colonial bouquet of white carnations with carnation buds on white ribbon streamers. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. A. Tripp, 2632 Blackwood Avenue and Mr. and Mrs. O. Skinner, 418 Obed Avenue.

Rev. Emma M. Smiley officiated at the ceremony. Wedding music was played by pianist, Mrs. S. J. Chiversall. Spring flowers decorated the altar.

Maid of honor, Miss Barbara Stancil and bridesmaid, Miss Rosemary Keays, wore full skirted gowns of pale pink nylon crepe with matching pink flowered headbands and carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations edged in white.

Albert Hafer Jr. was best man. Ushers were Terry Thomas and Leigh Pudsey.

A two-tier wedding cake set on pink tulle and flanked by white candles in silver candelabra centred the bride's table at a reception in Norway House. Bouquets of daffodils and tulips and pink and white streamers and wedding bells completed the decor. Joe Nelrick proposed the toast to the bride.

Here to attend the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. Wratton of Duncan and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Harrison of Lake Cowichan.

Leaving for a honeymoon in Seattle, Portland and Vancouver the bride wore a pale blue two-piece suit trimmed in white and with white accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

On return the newlyweds will make their home at 3030 Tillicum Road.

$10,000 Granted Hospital

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital was held in the Nurses' Residence, with Mrs. Glen Coffey presiding.

Among the several reports was Mrs. W. G. Thorpe's, which stated 4,380 dressings had been made. Mrs. G. H. Metcalfe stated 357 packages had been completed and Mrs. F. D. Lee reported that $53 had been received from the Auxiliary's shoe case, which is kept in the maternity wing.

Miss M. Thompson, director of nursing, attended and requested that the Auxiliary reconsider the granting of the Lena Mitchell Bursary of $100. Mr. George Masters, Hospital Administrator, made a request to the members to make an early grant at this time from the Auxiliary's special fund, set aside for the new wing. It was decided to forward the administrator $10,000 forthwith.

Garden Notes

Scatter, Thin, Ignore

By M. V. CHANNUT, FRMS

In yesterday's column I told the story of the Mission Bells, a new race of California poppies bearing double and wendouble flowers in shades and color combinations never before seen in the poppy family. As you may have gathered, I am pretty enthusiastic about these seeds and I am most anxious for all my gardening friends to try them. I have a pretty big bagful of the seeds—you'll never guess how much wangling I had to do to get them—and I figure I can afford to allow 150 to 200 seeds to each person who requests a free packet.

How do you get your free seeds? Just drop me a line and ask for them or, if you don't like writing letters, clip and use the order form at the foot of this column.

All I ask is that you supply the stamp and addressed envelope to carry your free seeds back to you. When your letter is received, our Colonial girls will open it, take out your stamped and self-addressed envelope, slip a packet of Mission Bells seeds in it, lick it shut and mail it right back to you.

In Mission Bells we have a flower which is accustomed to roughing it, thriving in those problem spots in the garden where other plants seldom and die. They love a dry, sun-baked spot, in hard-to-cultivate places, along fences, on hot, sunny banks and even in the crevices of old rock walls and such places. Drought holds no terrors for this plant, for the fleshy tap root will always push down deeply enough to find moisture.

This same tap root poses one problem, though. Because of the long root, as easily broken, the California poppy is extremely difficult to transplant successfully and, for this reason, it is best to sow the seeds where the plants are to stand. Sow very thinly, for you'll have to thin out the seedlings to 10 inches apart to give them elbow room and, while you have nothing to lose if you try transplanting the seedlings to elsewhere in the garden, I don't think you'll get away with it.

Three things they demand: A light, well-drained, rather poorish soil, plenty of sunshine and very shallow covering. In fact, it is better not to try to cover the seeds at all—simply scatter the seeds on the surface of the soil and allow the rain to wash them in.

Once the seedlings come up a week or 10 days after sowing, and after they are thinned out, no further attention of any kind is required. They don't need fertilizer, they can find their own moisture and they can hold their own against most weeds. You don't even have to deadhead the plants for, as each blossom fades, the petals fall off, leaving a nice clean plant. Blooming continues without interruption right through the summer.

Poppies, generally speaking, are not too good as cut flowers for the house, but Mission Bells are better than most members of the poppy tribe. If cut in the bud and plunged immediately in cold deep water, the blooms will last for about three days. The blue-green fern-like foliage also is an excellent mixer for use in bouquets and arrangements.

Soraya to Play a Queen

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The Queen Soraya came through her screen test for Man the Exterminator in a blaze of glory. "She is a natural star personality," stated the producer. And as an ex-queen, she will start her in a top role in The Bible. She will play Queen Esther — for a start.

Two blonde young ladies are getting good breaks — Dorothy Friesen has replaced Carol Channing in the George Burns night club show. And Stella Stevens is signing as the leading girl with Marlon Brando and David Niven in King of the Mountain.

Bette Davis and Katharine Hepburn have never been so co-operative with the press. The reason? Both aging actresses would dearly love to win another Oscar — Bette for Whatever Happened to Baby Jane. And Kath for Long Day's Journey into Night. Ah well, they will know the word, or best, next Monday night.

What's this? Trevor Howard to play the despicable Nazi, Adolph Eichmann, in a British film, and handsome Peter Finch as the Israeli agent who captured him.

Jack Lemmon, a quiet, thoughtful type in real life, plays a lachrymose landlord in his new picture, Under the Yum, Yum Tree.

British Actress Margaret Rutherford who in heaven knows how old, has enough energy in the old girl to be touring England giving poetry readings on her whistle stops. And while I think that Dame Edith Evans is an excellent actress, I believe she is somewhat too archaic for her role in The Chalk Garden with Deborah Kerr and Hayley Mills.

The plot of the Peter Sellers film Dr. Strangelove, or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb, seems to be identical with the best-selling book, Fall Safe. But I can't imagine why Peter's producers are worried about the film version of the latter. Peter's picture will be released early in the fall. Fall Safe is not yet in production.

Arthur Miller is putting finishing touches to the screenplay version of his one act play, A Memory of Two Sundays. This is Miller's first film script since he wrote The Mistral for the late Marilyn Monroe. Carol Lawrence has been meeting with director Sidney Lumet to play the leading role.

Carolyn Jones is a blonde. But she didn't get any where in pictures until she dyed her hair brunette. Recently she wore a blonde wig and a photograph of Carolyn in the wig, appeared in a French magazine. She immediately received an offer to star for French producer Pierre Benoit in Along a Lonely Road. As a blonde!

The Damned, starring MacDonald Carey, Vivian Lindfors and Shirley Anne Field, was made two years ago by Columbia, then put on the shelf. The topic was about what can happen to us, with atomic radiation. It was considered too frightening to release. But now, with such horrors as birds killing people going the movie rounds, The Damned has been taken off the shelf and will be released.

Efforts Made to Halt Shameful Records

Man the Exterminator

By ROBERT MUNKEL

From London

Among all the animals that have ever roamed the earth since the beginning of time man alone has one dreadful distinction—he is the only one who has ever completely exterminated another species.

The shameful record is on display at the Fauna Preservation Society here which has been fighting for years against apathy, ignorance and butchery to keep the list from lengthening.

The passenger pigeon once darkened the skies of the United States in its billions. The last survivor shuddered and died in the Cincinnati Zoo in 1914. White hunters wiped out the last of hundreds of thousands of Quagga, a kind of zebra, to feed native workers in South Africa in the 19th century.

The great sea cow discovered by the naturalist Steiner in the Bering Sea evolved over millions of years into a tame, playful elephantine mammal carrying more than a ton of delicious flesh. Man exterminated it from the earth in less than a century.

"Dead as a doornail" is more than a cliché. It was the end of the line for one of nature's experiments in flightless birds of the 17th century. Its meat was strong—though not too strong for sailors—but its eggs were delicious. And so imprudent man, who could have farmed it, chose to eliminate it.

If the killing was all in the past, Lieut. Col. C. L. Boyle, secretary of the Fauna Preservation Society, would regard the record as a grim enough indictment of man. But even today, in many parts of the world, there are species which are being hunted down to a level from which there may be no revival.

Zoos are rapidly becoming only safe place for rhinoceroses. Rich Chinese will pay almost any money for real rhinoceros horn in belief that potion made from it is guarantee of virility.

Of the most spectacular and interesting animals and birds and reptiles still among us.

It is a little which, if lost, means that succeeding generations will know the mountain gorilla, the rhinoceros, the orang utan of Sumatra and Borneo, the giant tortoises of the Galapagos; the whooping crane of the United States and Canada and many others, only from zoo or museum specimens.

Of the world's threatened species, one of the most persistent and cruel campaigns is being waged by poachers against the rhinoceros because of a legend in China that a potion made from its horn is a guarantee of virility. Rich Chinese will pay any amount for real rhino horn.

A similar legend may have broken the continuity of the Arabian oryx. The next year or two will tell, but into the society's offices at the London Zoo has come an adventure swept across the border twice (for political reasons the identity of the "sportsmen" is not divulged) and moved down the 64 oryx.

They simply ran each oryx into the ground with their jeeps and shot it when it tired in the uneven chase.

At the time of the raids the number of living Arabian oryx was uncertain. But an expedition sponsored by the Fauna Preservation Society under the name "Operation Oryx" to try to capture a breeding nucleus and save the species from extinction found traces of only 11 more.

So it would seem that in two wanton raids almost an entire species was wiped out.

After news of the brutal attack on the oryx came out preparations were immediately begun in Britain, Aden and Kenya to mount an expedition. Officials of the East-Aden Protectorate got permission for "Operation Oryx."

Game experts assembled under Major I. R. Grimwood of the Kenya game department, which had offered to look after any animals captured.

In two weeks of intensive ground reconnaissance with air support from a small plane the expedition was able to track down and capture only two bull and one cow oryx.

The captured animals were flown 2,000 miles to Kenya where they are now said to be thriving.

If the oryx do well in Kenya and breed there it may be possible in some more enlightened future day to re-establish the species in its own desert homeland.

World WAS On the Brink

By WILLIAM MacDOUGALL

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara has disclosed how perilously close the world was to nuclear war on the night of Oct. 22 when the U.S. was poised with "several hundred thousand men ready to invade Cuba."

In one of the most forthright statements yet by the Kennedy administration on the precarious state of world events during the Cuban crisis McNamara defined the U.S. position to the House defence appropriations subcommittee in secret testimony just released.

ANY AGREEMENT?

Rep. James Whitten (D-Miss.) asked if the U.S. had agreed with Nikita Khrushchev on any course of action in the crisis.

"I think," Whitten said, "the American people are asking an answer in that area and are greatly disturbed. It is sort of unrealistic with Khrushchev's buildup he suddenly would take this turn unless there was something he expected."

"If that is so," McNamara replied, "the American people failed completely to understand what happened during that very important period of October.

READY TO INVADE

"They failed to understand we had a force of several hundred thousand men ready to invade Cuba."

"They failed to understand that had we invaded Cuba, we would have been confronted with the Soviets; that had we been confronted with the Soviets we would have killed thousands of them . . ."

In that event, the Soviets

"would probably have had to respond, (and) they might have had nuclear delivery weapons there (which) might have been operational and they might have been launched . . ."

In any case "Khrushchev knew without any question whatsoever he faced the full military power of the United States, including its nuclear weapons."

McNamara said that "may be difficult to understand for some, but it is not difficult for me to understand because we faced that night the possibility of launching nuclear weapons and Khrushchev knew it, and that is the reason and the only reason why he withdrew those weapons."

Asked what the Soviet objective was in placing offensive missiles and bombers in Cuba, McNamara replied:

"I believe Premier Khrushchev intended to disclose the introduction of offensive weapons systems directed against this nation at some time appropriate to him, perhaps in conjunction with the renewed pressure upon Berlin, and endeavor thereby to weaken the negotiating position of the Western world."

Kremlin Stew

Nikita Still Afloat

By GEORGE DYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Westerners who try to keep tabs on what is going on in the Kremlin have noted signs of strain among Russia's ruling clique in recent months. Qualified experts see nothing they would describe as an imminent threat to Premier Khrushchev's political future, however.

This is the reaction heard here to the intriguing dispatch the Communist newspaper 'Ulitin' in Rome, printed Monday under a Moscow placeline. This dispatch spoke of grave problems and economic failures in the Soviet Union and said Moscow is "living in a delicate political moment."

Nikita Still Safe

One diplomatic observer, commenting on a recent flurry of rumors of strife in the Communist party's presidium, quipped:

"I don't think Khrushchev is in serious trouble — but he ought to be."

The last year has by all estimates been a tough one for the premier in agriculture, industry and other fields.

Admitted Mess

A year ago Khrushchev admitted Soviet farming is in a mess. He gave a plenum of the central committee one of the gloomiest outlines of the farm situation on record. Khrushchev asked the central committee for more money for farm machines and fertilizer but for some still unexplained reason he never got it.

The Soviet leader in June raised retail prices on meat and dairy products. These extra funds he earmarked for the peasants in the form of higher state purchase prices for meat and milk—an inducement the government desperately hopes will produce dramatic results this year.

Sweeping Change

Last fall Khrushchev engineered a sweeping reorganization of the party and government apparatus along industrial and agricultural lines.

For the last 10 years, the Soviet leader has been running a one-man show in agriculture and the farm crisis has clearly hurt him.

Industry, after 10 years of brisk expansion, has levelled off. Capital construction is in a state of near-chaos and serious faults have been uncovered in over-all planning mechanisms. Part of the blame for these shortcomings has indirectly been laid to the decentralization of industrial controls Khrushchev ordered in 1957.

Another big reorganization has returned these controls to Moscow.

Peking Big Threat

The most serious threat to Khrushchev's personal leadership of the Communist camp comes from Peking.

The Chinese have embarked on a determined crusade to change the course of Khrushchev's foreign policies. The Russians recently charged that what the "dogmatist" Chinese really want is a change in the Kremlin leadership.

Summit

Nikita Asks China

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has turned down a Red Chinese invitation to Peking but has invited Mao Tse-tung to Moscow for a summit meeting to discuss the ideological rift between the two Communist giants, Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The Soviet Communist party's central committee extended the invitation to Mao in a note delivered to Chinese Communist party leaders in Peking. (See also Page 26.)

It suggested spring or summer for a Mao-Khrushchev meeting. If Mao cannot make the trip, the Soviet note said, it suggested he send a representative for high-level talks May 15, Tass reported.

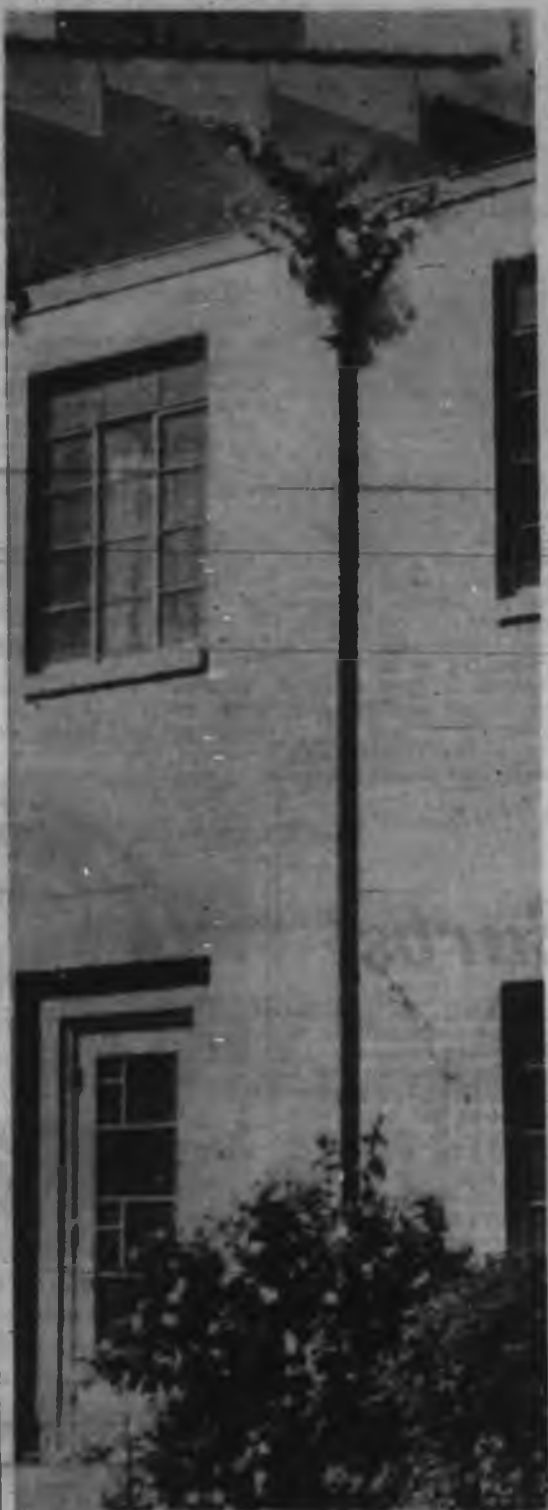

There was no immediate Peking reaction to the Soviet note.

Israel Calls Session Over Crises

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's Parliament will hold a special session Sunday to discuss Israel's relations with West Germany and the resignation of the officially anonymous chief of Israel's security service.

The special session has been demanded by three opposition parties—the right-wing Herut, the Liberals and the left-wing Mapai—joined since Monday by the Communists.

All these parties are expected to move a motion of no confidence in the coalition government headed by Premier Ben-Gurion.

Diefenbaker

Burnt Sacrifice Canada's Role Under Liberals

MONTREAL (CP)—Liberal party nuclear policy seems to raise the prospect of making Canada into a "burnt sacrifice," Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Tuesday.

In a speech here and at nearby Dorval, he hit hard at the nuclear question—especially in connection with recently disclosed Senate testimony by Defense Secretary McNamara of the United States.

"Are they going to make Canada into a burnt sacrifice?" the prime minister said in reference to the Liberal decision to accept nuclear warheads for NATO and NORAD weapons including the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

McNAMARA STAND
"That is what he (McNamara) quite frankly points out," said the prime minister.

He spoke to about 200 people in Dorval and about 650 in east end Montreal on the second floor of the DeLorimier Stadium. The prime minister reiterated that he senses an upsurge in party fortunes. He said that Mr. McNamara confirms the government's policy of refusing to have nuclear warheads for the Bomarc stored in Canada.

Further, in effect Mr. McNamara said that the Bomarc is a "burnt sacrifice."

WINNIPEG (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson pleaded Tuesday night for the electoral support he needs to form a strong, stable government and promised that if he gets it, his first name—will produce a budget within a month after the Commons meets in May.

He said the budget would include "a program—this is important—for reversing the present trend toward absentee ownership of Canadian resources and Canadian companies." It was the first time he had said this. He did not elaborate.

HECKLING LIGHT
Mr. Pearson spoke to about 8,500 in the 10,000-seat Winnipeg Arena. Heckling and booing was light.

His budget promise also included a long-term economic expansion program aimed at "elimination of unemployment" and a program to reduce the balance-of-payments deficit.

NEW ANGLE
Mr. Pearson introduced another new angle in an off-repeated pledge to set up a national development corporation, by saying it would be able to sponsor and invest in "large economic projects beyond the scope of private industry in Canada."

"It's these big projects which we had after 1945 we've got to get going again," he said. The corporation would be using "the financial power of the state."

Again he pledged a municipal

Liquor Prices Shaved

Price of imported liquor has been reduced by the provincial government as the result of a federal government move to terminate emergency tariffs imposed last year.

The new cut in prices is the second since Ottawa commenced reducing the tariff structure.

An order-in-council passed by the cabinet incorporated reductions for imported brands of Scotch, Irish whiskey, bourbon, brandy, gin, rum, wines, liqueurs, and other spirits.

Scotch prices are reduced from 10 cents per 25-cent bottle for the cheapest brands to 40 cents for the most expensive. Reductions for other types of liquor correspond.

STUBBY BOTTLES
On Sale Today

The new compact "stubby" beer bottles will be on sale in some Victoria liquor stores today. They will be returnable on the same basis as the old ones.

Argentina

Tank Unit Bombed By Rebels

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rebel planes and artillery bombed and shelled a government tank column near La Plata Tuesday night in a new outburst of Argentina's navy-led revolt to unseat President Jose Maria Guido.

The latest clash broke out in a residential section of La Plata, about 35 miles south of Buenos Aires, two hours after Guido's command claimed Argentine rebels had been routed from most of the strongholds they had seized in a sudden anti-Peronist uprising Tuesday.

FLEET ON WAY
The rebels answered government victory claims with warnings that the Argentine fleet, led by the aircraft carrier Independence, was steaming full speed toward Buenos Aires to deliver a knockout blow to Guido's regime.

Rebel marines who had held downtown Buenos Aires most of the day abandoned the capital about dusk, and Gen. Benjamin Menéndez and Federico Toranzo Montero, the two bitterly anti-Peronist army men who served as figureheads for the naval uprising, were reported to have fled aboard the icebreaker San Martín.

CLAIMS OTHERS CHASED
Guido's command also claimed other insurgent units had been chased from such important inland cities as Cordoba, about 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

But the insurgents still held most important naval bases and rebel radio continued their defiant broadcasts. Guido himself virtually nullified his own victory claims by making two subsequent broadcast appeals to the rebels to abandon the fight.

Latins Split
CARACAS (UPI)—Venezuela broke relations with Guatemala Tuesday and ordered its ambassador in Guatemala City and his staff to return to Caracas immediately.

The foreign ministry said it will not recognize the new military government because of Venezuela's announced policy not to have relations with any regime of force, the announcement said.

Strongman Cheered
GUATEMALA CITY (AP)—Col. Enrique Peralta made his first public appearance Tuesday as Guatemala's strongman and won rousing cheers with a pledge of sweeping economic reforms under the free enterprise system.

SCIENTISTS TO GO
The announcement coincided with Soviet predictions that a manned flight to the moon now is highly probable and a suggestion that scientists may make the trip with cosmonauts when a landing is feasible.

A Leningrad space scientist said Tuesday night the moon shot will report interesting data on the moon and added, "It may be supposed that the moon will be the first heavenly body to be visited by man."

Airline Told 'To Desist'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Air Transport Board has ordered B.C. Airlines to "cease and desist" a charter service for loggers trying to avoid flying on strike-bound Pacific Western Airlines.

B.C. Airlines made only one flight between here and Seattle Bay, near Port Hardy, before the ATB order came following a PWA charge the flights were in competition to their own flights.

Students Stuck On Cattle Boat

Students Stuck On Cattle Boat

CAMPBELL RIVER—A cattle boat has replaced the Quadra Queen temporarily on the Quathilash Cove-Campbell River run—and Quadra Island parents are unhappy.

The 68 students at Campbell River High School who live on Quadra Island were asked to be at the Cove by 8:15 a.m. Tuesday to be ferried to school.

By 8:30 a.m. the cattle boat had a full load and left—without half the students.

The boat returned for these students at 9:05 a.m., and sailed for Campbell River with its second full load at 9:23 a.m.

All the students were now across but all were late for school, the second group about an hour late.

According to information here this situation will continue until the Easter holidays. Island residents have written to Highways Minister Gagliardi asking for better ferry facilities.

CIA Backed Raiders

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York man said Tuesday night his 36-foot boat, the Violynn III, had been used repeatedly in Cuban exile operations, often with the advance knowledge of the U.S. government.

Alexander Rorke Jr., 26, whose 36-foot boat and 17 anti-Castro raiders were seized in the Bahamas, said the Violynn III will be used in future Cuban operations if the British release it.

"I think it is time that some of us did something about it," said Rorke of the Cuban situation.

Cuba Sorry Over Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuba expressed regret Tuesday for what it said was a mistaken attack on a U.S. freighter last Thursday. It promised to try to prevent such incidents in the future.

Rorke, a freelance television reporter who said he had been a prisoner of Cuban Premier Castro's regime on two occasions, said the boat has made 11 Cuban runs since last October. On eight of them, he continued, students from U.S. universities participated.

He identified the schools as Harvard, Boston College, Miami University, Princeton and Indiana, but declined to name the students because "I don't think it is fair to the boys."

LANDED AGENTS
The U.S. government, through the Central Intelligence Agency, had advance knowledge of the trip, Rorke said. He described the operations as supply missions or trips to land agents in Cuba and said the only shots fired from Violynn III were defensive, after the boat had been fired upon.

Rorke also claimed that the CIA had financed trips of the Violynn III. These were last, let alone in October and December of 1961, he said.

Lubell Forecasts Liberal Victory—in Minority

By SAM LUBELL,
Editor of a Series

Prime Minister Diefenbaker faces defeat in his bid for reelection in next Monday's voting.

During the last two weeks the 67-year-old Conservative leader has managed to out the defections in his own party with his "everybody is against me" campaigning. The enthusiasm of his supporters has also been strengthened by the feeling that "He said the Bomarc were worthless and now the United States admits it."

Still a drop in Mr. Diefenbaker's support to below 100 seats—It now is 116—seems fairly certain in view of the virtually collapsed Conservative vote in Quebec and the strong anti-Diefenbaker revolt among liberal-minded Conservatives in the more urbanized parts of Ontario.

Whether Liberal leader Lester Pearson can pick up the 133 seats needed for a clear majority remains uncertain. During the last five weeks I have interviewed typical voters in 41 of the nation's more sensitive ridings. These interviews indicate that the Liberals probably can count on something like 120 seats, with another 15 to 20 seats still close and doubtful.

A pro-Liberal surge in the next few days could sweep Mr. Pearson in with a majority. Up to this writing, though, I have found no evidence of any such surge. The main change in voter feeling that I have detected in recent days has been a stiffening of pro-Diefenbaker loyalty and a jump in the proportion of voters who protest, "I'm disgusted with all four parties. This election should never have been held."

In Ottawa a government pension expert summed up a feeling I have found in every riding when he said, "Diefenbaker has shown he isn't fit to be Prime Minister but Pearson is no leader either."

Probably the key to Liberal hopes is the sizeable number of voters who declare "I don't care which party wins as long as someone gets a majority." If these voters decide en masse that the Liberal party holds the only hope for a stable government, their votes could still produce a majority government.

Even if that were to happen, Monday's balloting will still be that of a sorely divided, election-weary nation. The rural-urban cleavage laid bare in the 1962 election has been deepened by this year's campaigning. Entangled with this farm-city conflict are bitter differences of sectional interests and economic class, reflecting the uneven economic development across the country; also conflicting attitudes towards the United States.

The heaviest Liberal gains can be expected in the two urban-suburban complexes of Toronto and Montreal, which hold about a fifth of Canada's population. In Monday's voting these areas seem likely to be swept clear of Conservative representation in Parliament. One or two popular MPs like Frank McGee in the Toronto suburb of York-Scarboro may survive but even this isn't too good a bet.

Metropolitan Toronto and Montreal are the parts of Canada which have experienced

Willow Point Fatality Accidental

CAMPBELL RIVER—Traffic death Feb. 18 of John McKay was termed accidental at continuation Tuesday of an inquest adjourned from an earlier date.

The jury, under Coroner P. E. Lewis, attached no blame for the accident, and made no recommendations.

RCMP said Mr. McKay was a passenger in a car driven by Alvin Hutchinson, now living here, which was involved in an accident Feb. 18 at Willow Point. Mr. McKay suffered extensive injuries when the car turned over. The driver was unhurt.

NANAIMO — All agencies of Nanaimo and District United Appeal have been asked to send two representatives to a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. today at the Diners Rendezvous.

New President of the appeal, Maud G. Zorin, will present ideas and plans for the coming year.

COURTESY — Eighth Street between Cumberland Road and Cliffe Avenue should be a secondary highway now that one block of Cumberland has become a closed parking lot, city council here agreed.

It is hoped that Fifth, now a secondary highway for part of its distance, will be released as secondary highway for another five blocks.

The city will continue to use works or waterworks crews on city work outside the municipality as long as crews have the equipment and time and can do the work cheaper than private contractors.

Possibility of permitting left turns from the Cumberland Road parking lot onto England Avenue will be studied by the protection services committee.

PORT ALBERNI — Bernie Proffitt and his wife, Dale, were winners of the car rally at the weekend when five local teams and eight out-of-town entries took part in a 125-mile tour.

The course, mapped by Phil Crammond, took the 13 cars through backroads of this district and in Nanaimo and back by a circuitous route. Don Somerville helped with check points in the rally which got underway at midnight Saturday.

Time for the event was set at seven hours, 10 minutes. In second place were Al Dore and B. Kurtz; third, Jack Johnson and Gerry Grant; fourth, Jack Fraser and Irv Wilson.

A team of three women, Mrs. Marjorie Power, Mrs. Evelyn McGarrigle and Mrs. Tommy Kettle, finished in sixth place, handicapped by lack of equipment and a faulty speedometer.

GALIANO ISLAND — A special meeting of the Galiano Red and Gun Club was held in the clubhouse March 22 with president Ervin Cuse in the chair. Many new resolutions were approved, among them one stating that only men be eligible to serve on the committee. Mrs. M. Becklund's resignation was accepted.

Plans were completed for annual trophy inter-island trap shoot and the annual trophy dinner.

PORT ALBERNI — Reginald Garfield Nolan was sentenced to one year in Oakalla by Magistrate W. E. MacLeod.

The young man had pleaded guilty last week to a charge of stealing six sports shirts from a local store. He was apprehended by store employees on Third Avenue following the theft.

Nolan protested the severity of the penalty, telling the magistrate that he was "pretty stern." He was told that he could obtain information on the procedure at Oakalla if he wished to appeal.

Reference was made to the man's record, when he asked for leniency and said that he had hopes of obtaining work here within the next two weeks.

GALIANO ISLAND — A good crowd of people attended the old-fashioned fish fry at the Galiano Golf and Country Club March 30. The fish were caught by Capt. G. W. George.

son, who teamed up with his wife and hosts. Mr. and Mrs. I. P. Denroche, as cooks. Tom Carolan cooked his famous Carolina clam chowder.

Baked salmon, steamed cod, fried lemon sole, fried scallops, steamed potatoes, and salad rounded out the banquet of the sea.

LADYSMITH — Edwin Bastian, Ladysmith, in police court received a suspended sentence of six months for common assault. He placed a bond in his own recognizance.

A fine of $10 was imposed on William Smith of Cedar for failing to stop at a stop sign.

DUNCAN — Five Duncan Rotarians spoke on their experiences at the recent Rotary district conference at Seattle at the last meeting of the Duncan club. Attending the conference were Peter Bird, Ed Curdall, Ernie Paulding, Helen Morris and Bert Grey.

Preparations for the Duncan club's May auction are progressing, committee chairman Bradshaw Harrison stated.

DUNCAN — Ritchie S. Parkin, a salesman living temporarily at Duncan, pleaded guilty in police court to failing to stop at a stop sign and speeding in Nanaimo, and was fined $10 and $25, respectively.

Terrace man Kenneth Sandberg was assessed $100 for careless driving. Police said court he was arrested following a 50-mile-an-hour chase when he tried to evade the police car. Police stated several times it appeared the accused lost control of his car on narrow county roads.

A Victoria juvenile was convicted of driving without a driver's licence and was fined $15. Local juvenile was fined a total of $50 for impaired driving and driving without a licence.

LAKE COWICHAN — Vancouver man Delford Seigner, recently involved in an accident near here, was convicted in police court of impaired driving, fined $300 or 30 days and is prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for the next six months.

TRIED BEFORE — Mr. White was advised by three chamber directors that if he had attended chamber meetings in the past he would know that several attempts had been made to have better directional signs installed. Cliff Pearson told Mr. White the retail section of Duncan had shown very little interest when approached about a large billboard at the southern approach.

Another City of Duncan directional sign at the Trans-Canada Highway was not favored by the highways department said Ald. James Patterson. He said the chamber probably will have success if it would approach the department and request an overhead sign.

PLANET — A committee set up last fall to study the possibility of developing an airport here is asking the department of transport for a preliminary survey.

At the latest Chamber meeting Harry Graf said the committee is seeking endorsement of the request from various groups and officials. The latter, he said, will be presented at next week's Chamber meeting.

Program chairman Al. Parson announced that D. V. Turner, manager, production, logging operations, MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., will be guest speaker at the meeting on April 9. His subject will be Intensive Forestry.

Guests at the luncheon meeting included Capt. A. F. Deane of the freighter Inshore and Barry Kumpf, newly appointed manager of the Port Alberni branch, Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoid can history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pains were promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these cases histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important, of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This one accomplished with a new healing substance (Hio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Hio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

B.C.-Hawaii Tourist Link Strengthened by MLA

Tourist traffic between British Columbia and the Hawaiian Islands should be two-way, according to J. Gordon Gibson, MLA for North Vancouver, who also owns and operates the 27-acre exclusive Maui Lu Resort at Kihai, on the island of Maui.

Mr. Gibson flew to Honolulu immediately after the house prorogued last week. Before leaving he purchased 20 copies of George N. Hansen's book "Vancouver Island's West Coast, 1782-1952," one to be placed in each of the resort's 18 beach bungalows, others in the hotel rooms.

By this means, and with a liberal supply of British Columbia travel folders, Mr.

Gibson hopes to induce many of the resort's clientele to visit Vancouver Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibson's home is at North Vancouver. They spend six weeks of each year at the resort. The resort, only 20 minutes flying time from Honolulu, is one of Mr. Gibson's many commercial enterprises.

Island Scenery

Picture above is not of Rogers Pass Highway—it was taken last weekend 25 miles from Nanaimo, in Nanaimo Lakes logging area 2,708 feet above sea level. Weekend saw two feet of snow fall here, while four feet were dumped on other parts of Vancouver Island. Total of 700 loggers were put out of work by snow, 200 in Nanaimo Lakes District.—(Agnes M. Platt.)

Nanaimo Startled By Cheetah in Car

NANAIMO—Residents of Nanaimo shied at the sight of a man driving through town this week with a full-grown cheetah sitting beside him.

Al Durning, owner of the Alberta Game Farm, was in town making arrangements to show a wild life film at Woodlands School April 11. The cheetah will accompany Mr. Durning on the stage.

Mr. Durning's film will show a variety of Canadian birds and animals. He just completed a lecture and picture tour of Canada and following the island showings he will return to the Alberta farm, made up of 1,500 acres 14 miles east of Edmonton.

CHEMAINUS — Local man William McPadden pleaded guilty to common assault, was fined $25 in police court and placed a $250 bond in his own recognizance.

Chemainus, Crofton

Exports Lowered

CHEMAINUS — Lumber exports from Chemainus and Crofton ports dropped sharply from 25,958,777 board feet in March, 1962, to 16,264,274 board feet in the same period this year. Exports during February of 1963 came to 13,562,000 board feet.

Terminal Switch Wanted

HORSESHOE BAY — West Vancouver Reeve Alex Furst has urged the provincial government to consider moving its Nanaimo-Vancouver ferry terminal out of this crowded resort settlement 15 miles northwest of Vancouver.

He said the bay, already crowded with marine craft, will become more congested when hourly ferry service is started on the Nanaimo run.

Bay residents, he said, claim the big ferries are a danger to sports fishermen who congregate the bay in small boats most of the summer.

The move and the government should consider running the Nanaimo ferry from Tawwassen, south of Vancouver, which already serves as the mainland terminal for government ferries to Sidney, near Victoria.

Biggest importer during March, 1963, was the United States with 6,225,000 board feet. The United Kingdom took 3,651,000 board feet; Japan, 2,525,000 board feet; Puerto Rico, 1,082,000 board feet; Portuguese East Africa, 1,004,000 board feet; Belgium, 1,001,000 board feet; Australia, 300,000 board feet; France, 244,150 board feet; Germany, 174,210 board feet, and Holland, 69,914 board feet.

Pulp export to various countries amounted to 6,383 tons during March, 1963.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unwanted fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naras Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons (full a day) as needed and follow the Naras Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regulate slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly blood disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Adv.

Comox Route—West Preferred

PORT ALBERNI — Reasons for a preference for the Comox route over the Horns Lake route for an alternate highway to the Alberni were outlined in a letter from Chamber of Commerce president William Beckingham to Walter Allen, president of Local 185, IWA.

According to Mr. Beckingham, the preference was based on the belief that the Comox route would serve more communities, open up an agricultural area, provide additional tourist attractions and present less of a problem in snow removal.

AIRPORT SURVEY — A committee set up last fall to study the possibility of developing an airport here is asking the department of transport for a preliminary survey.

At the latest Chamber meeting Harry Graf said the committee is seeking endorsement of the request from various groups and officials. The latter, he said, will be presented at next week's Chamber meeting.

Duncan Hears New Sign Plea

DUNCAN — "Where is Duncan?" asked an indignant local hotel operator at the last general meeting of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce. Richard White criticized the lack of an appropriate sign at Duncan's Trans-Canada Highway approach directing tourists into the centre of the city and he felt the chamber should make every effort to have this situation corrected.

He said if that is not done as soon as possible the chamber is liable to lose a number of members. He stated he would only pay a special assessment the local chamber is carrying out to raise $500 for the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau if proper signs help channel visitors into the downtown section of the city.

Career Guidance

DUNCAN — Preparations are being completed for the second annual Kiwanis-sponsored Career Guidance Night Friday at the Cowichan Senior Secondary School.

Counseling for about 50 professions and trades starts at 7 p.m. and will end at 10 p.m. Organizers are confident last year's record attendance of 2,500 students and parents will be exceeded this time. Some 100 counsellors will explain their occupation. Grade 8 to 12 students, Duncan, Lake Cowichan, Smith and Salt Spring Island,

Night School

Adult Classes Tripled

PORT ALBERT—Enrollment in the adult education program in this district has tripled in three years, A. L. Carter of the department of education, Victoria, said when he was guest speaker at a presentation program put on by the night school here Monday evening.

He said that the record of growth here was even faster than in the province as a whole, where enrollment has increased from 30,000 to 60,000 in five years.

HELP EMPLOYMENT

He told of the establishment of day schools in Kamloops and Penticton as a means of improving employment rating of adults who are out of work.

Mr. Carter said "We have hardly seen the beginning of the effects of automation on the labor market and on our way of life, but the time has come when more skills and more education are required to fill jobs."

IN SCHOOL LONGER

Before long, he said, nobody would be deprived of a college education for lack of funds. He predicted that people would be kept in school longer, the work week would be shortened and retirement age would be lowered as the country became geared to the age of automation.

LARGE AUDIENCE

The Night School Presents... a display and program arranged by the adult education division of the local school board, drew an audience of 350 people to the new gymnasium of Calgary Elementary School.

The program included a fashion show, modelling the products of sewing, millinery, tailoring and shoe covering classes; music by the flute recorder group, a demonstration by the leap-frog class and a concert by the folk song circle.

Dootson Trial
Victim Recalls Nothing After Going to Sleep

By DON GAIN

Robert Robinson, 65, whose extensive injuries at Colquitz Mental Home last fall resulted in the laying of an attempted murder charge, told an Assize Court jury yesterday he remembers nothing after he went to sleep a little after midnight Oct. 18 until he woke up in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Robinson was testifying at the trial of Peter Howard Dootson, a fellow employee at the mental home, who is charged with attempting to murder Robinson by striking him with a blunt instrument and setting fire to him.

Dootson spent the past week in the psychiatric ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital. An all-male jury found Monday that he was fit to stand trial.

A new all-male jury was chosen yesterday under the direction of Mr. Justice J. S. Atkins, presiding judge.

Crown prosecutor Alan Baker told the jury that the attempted murder had taken place in the staff of the mental home on Wilkinson Road.

Door Left Open

He said that, beside the radio, he had on the bedside table a pen and pencil, comb and shoebrush. He told of the bottom parts of his window being nailed closed after he had seen footprints outside his window. After that he opened his window from the top, he said.

Asked about his wallet, Robinson said it was in the inside pocket of his jacket but he didn't remember how much money was in it.

He said his door was open about a foot when he went to sleep.

"I don't remember anything after I went to sleep until I woke up in St. Joseph's Hospital," he said.

In cross-examination defence counsel Alan Bigelow asked Robinson if he had anything else on his night table. He said there might have been a magazine lying there.

"It was not possible for burning alone to cause the bruises he had," the doctor said.

Defence counsel asked Dr. Cupples if "people with no nerves in their hands" could touch something hot and not know it.

The doctor said this was possible.

When asked if it would burn the skin if it were hot enough, the doctor said it would.

Psychiatrist side Robert Paterson told the jury that he lived in Room 16 of the staff quarters.

He said he visited Robinson in his room "for approximately

Lying on Floor

"I saw men running towards Mr. Robinson's room. I went, too. I went into his room and saw him lying on the floor."

Paterson said he saw Divine (a co-worker) and Catherwood in the room. The room was full of smoke, he said. "There was a pool of blood inside the door. The mattress was smoking. Mr. Robinson was lying behind the door."

"I first saw Mr. Dootson when I came from Mr. Robinson's room to the outside phone in the corridor. He was on the intercom phone."

Humor Used To Advantage

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

"If we only had time to understand one another, wouldn't it be nice," said Victor Borge last night. "That's why I like to go on stage."

The Danish-born U.S. musician and humorist had just arrived in Victoria to prepare for tonight's concert with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at 8:15 p.m. in Esquimalt Sports Arena.

HAPPY PEOPLE

"After the show there are thousands of happy people, not saying unpleasant things but how much they enjoyed it and so on. They come to me and they say thank you so much. Thank you for what? I think them for making it possible."

Did he consider himself a musician or a comedian?

"I am a musician."

CREATIVE MEDIUM

"As you are dark, or blond, or tall, or small, so am I a humorist. A sense of humor is not something that is achieved; it is something that is there. It is a medium, with which to create, like a painter's brush or a poet's pen."

"You can use it to heal or to make people sick; you can use it to make people angry or to make them smile; you can use it to begin revolutions or to stop revolutions. I use humor to make people laugh."

ALL FUNNY MEN

President Kennedy, Sir Winston Churchill and Premier Khrushchev can all be very funny men, he said. But in the Soviet Union "they tell them what to laugh at."

"A dictatorial system cannot survive. One of the reasons is lack of freedom to laugh." He is different from a comedian, he said, because "what I say is not meant to be funny." It was a matter of timing and voice.

COULDN'T PLAY

He recalled how the oboe player with the Detroit Symphony once laughed so hard he couldn't play. "For the audience it's really a sight to see the orchestra become part of the audience."

"But what I do in playing with the orchestra is absolutely straight. In my concerts the audience listen to the music, they enjoy it, they get a couple of laughs in between."

"As nobody else does a show like mine, nobody can compare," he laughed. "So I'll never know whether I'm good, bad or indifferent."

Home Fire Confined By Speedy Firemen

LAKE COWICHAN—Prompt response by the volunteer fire brigade Monday night prevented the six-room house of Mrs. Valma Halliday, 570 Arbutus Street, from being completely gutted.

Mrs. Halliday, a widow, was awakened by the coughing of her three small children and noticing smoke led them to safety.

The fire brigade confined the blaze to the living room and kitchen but police said the loss of valuable furniture was considerable. Other rooms suffered smoke damage. The fire is believed to have started in the living room. The loss is covered by insurance.

Forest Research Project for Saanich

Construction of a $2,399,000 forest research laboratory building on Burnside Road in Saanich will begin immediately, supervising architect R. J. Bickford said last night.

The T-shaped building will be 265 feet long, facing onto Burnside Road, with a two-storey administration block forming the short stem of the T-shape.

Announcement that the contract for construction has been let to Burns and Dutton Construction (1962) Limited of Richmond was made yesterday by George Chatterton, member of the last parliament for Esquimalt-Saanich.

The firm submitted the lowest bid of seven received by the federal works department. Highest bid was $2,512,000.

Target for completion of the building is July, 1964. Site for the building is on Burnside Road, between the CNR tracks and Interurban Road.

The laboratory section of the building—265 feet long, 48 feet wide and three stories high—will be built of reinforced concrete.

The administration block, 77 feet by 50 feet, will be of wood frame construction with laminated wood floors.

The building will include laboratories, a library, conference room, photographic section and service rooms. A 72-feet by 57 feet heating plant will be built apart from the main building and connected by a passageway.

Architect's drawing of $2,399,000 forest research laboratory block to be built in Saanich emphasizes 265-foot length of main part of T-shaped building. Administration offices will be housed in two-storey section. Target date for completion is July, 1964.

Nikita Asks China

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev has turned down a Red Chinese invitation to Peking but has invited Mao Tse-tung to Moscow for a summit meeting to discuss the ideological rift between the two Communist giants, Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The Soviet Communist party's central committee extended the invitation to Mao in a note delivered to Chinese Communist party leaders in Peking. (See also Page 26.)

It suggested spring or summer for a Mao-Khrushchev meeting. If Mao cannot make the trip the Soviet note said, it suggested he send a representative for high-level talks May 15, Tass reported.

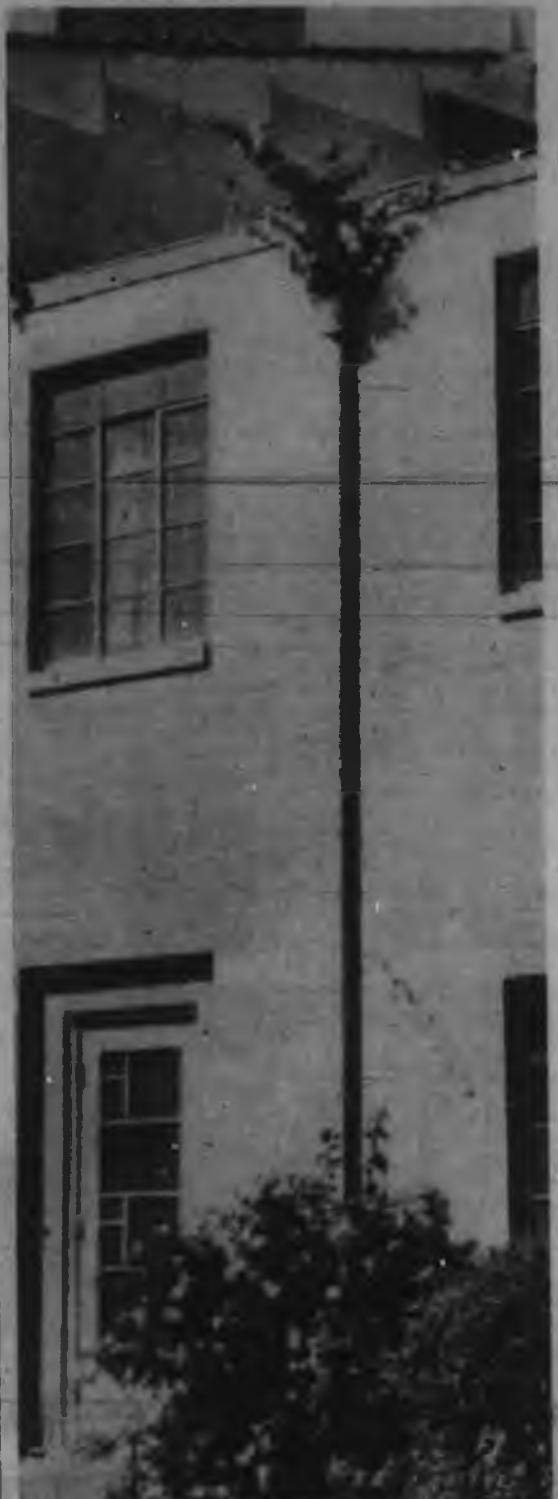

There was no immediate Peking reaction to the Soviet note.

Israel Calls Session Over Crises

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israel's Parliament will hold a special session Sunday to discuss Israel's relations with West Germany and the resignation of the officially anonymous chief of Israel's security service.

The special session has been demanded by three opposition parties—the right-wing Herut, the Liberals and the left-wing Mapam—joined since Monday by the Communists.

All these parties are expected to move a motion of no confidence in the coalition government headed by Premier Ben-Gurion.

Absentee Owners Must Go

WINNIPEG (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson pleaded Tuesday night for the electoral support he needs to form a strong, stable government and promised that if he gets it, his finance minister—whom he did not name—will produce a budget within a month after the Commons meets in May.

He said the budget would include "a program—this is important—for reversing the present trend toward absentee ownership of Canadian resources and Canadian companies." It was the first time he had said this. He did not elaborate.

HECKLING LIGHT
Mr. Pearson spoke to about 8,500 in the 10,000-seat Winnipeg Arena. Heckling and booing were heard.

His budget promises also included a long-term economic expansion program aimed at "elimination of unemployment" and a program to reduce the balance-of-payments deficit.

NEW ANGLE
Mr. Pearson introduced another new angle in an oft-repeated pledge to set up a national development corporation, by saying it would be able to acquire and invest in "large economic projects beyond the scope of private industry in Canada."

"It's these big projects which we had after 1945 we've got to get going again," he said. The corporation would be using "the financial power of the state."

Again he pledged a municipal

CITY STORE HELD UP BY WOMAN

A stocky woman armed with a gun held up Quonley's Fruit Store, 1628 Government Street, early today and fled with more than $150.

"She came in and picked up an armful of groceries," owner Sam Chan told the Colonist early today.

"She told me to tally them up, then when the cash register opened she pulled out a gun and asked me for the money," Police said the woman was wearing an Indian sweater and slacks.

She fled in the direction of Herald Street. A search of the area was being conducted by police at press time.

Mr. Chan said the woman was carrying a paper bag when she ran out of the store. She had ordered him to put the money in the bag. She left the groceries behind.

Rebels Shell Tanks

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rebel planes and artillery bombed and shelled a government tank column near La Plata Tuesday night in a new outburst of Argentina's navy-led revolt to oust President Jose Maria Guido.

The latest clash broke out in a residential section of La Plata, about 25 miles south of Buenos Aires, two hours after Guido's command claimed Argentine rebels had been routed from most of the strongholds they had seized in a sudden anti-Peronist uprising Tuesday.

The rebels answered government victory claims with warnings that the Argentine fleet, led by the aircraft carrier Independence, was steaming full speed toward Buenos Aires to deliver a knockout blow to Guido's regime.

Reds Planning Robot Base On the Moon?

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union Tuesday launched a 1½-ton unmanned spaceship toward the moon and hinted it may land a robot station in preparation for manned flights.

The Lunik IV moonship, big enough to hold a man, blasted off on the 3½-day, 230,400-mile journey to the moon's vicinity in a scientific data. (See also Page 3.)

The official news agency Tass hinted at a possible robot landing when it said "important information" could be obtained by an automatic station landing on the surface.

There was no indication the Russians would try to hit the moon head-on as they did in 1959 but a Tass scientific dispatch said there were several priorities—new photos, a "soft" landing to preserve scientific equipment and hitting the moon with rockets to send up columns of fire.

SCIENTISTS TO GO

The announcement coincided with Soviet predictions that a manned flight to the moon now is highly probable and a suggestion that scientists may make the trip with cosmonauts when a landing is feasible.

A Leningrad space scientist said Tuesday night the moon shot will report interesting data on the moon and added, "It may be supposed that the moon will be the first heavenly

Students Stuck On Cattle Boat

CAMPBELL RIVER—A cattle boat has replaced the Quadra Queen temporarily on the Quathaski Cove-Campbell River run—and Quadra Island parents are unhappy.

The 68 students at Campbell River High School who live on Quadra Island were asked to be at the Cove by 8:15 a.m. Tuesday to be ferried to school.

By 8:30 a.m. the cattle boat had a full load and left—without half the students.

The boat returned for these students at 9:05 a.m., and sailed for Campbell River with its second full load at 9:23 a.m.

All the students were now across but all were late for school, the second group about an hour late.

According to information here this situation will continue until the Easter holidays. Island residents have written to Highways Minister Gagliardi asking for better ferry facilities.

CIA Backed Raiders

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York man said Tuesday night his 36-foot boat, the Violynn III, had been used repeatedly in Cuban exile operations, often with the advance knowledge of the U.S. government.

Alexander Rorke Jr., 36, whose 36-foot boat and 17 anti-Castro raiders were seized in the Bahamas, said the Violynn III will be used in future Cuban operations if the British release it.

"I think it is time that some of us did something about it," said Rorke of the Cuban situation.

Cuba Sorry Over Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuba expressed regret Tuesday for what it said was a mistaken attack on a U.S. freighter last Thursday. It promised to try to prevent such incidents in the future.

Rorke, a freelance television reporter who said he had been a prisoner of Cuban Premier Castro's regime on two occasions, said the boat has made 11 Cuban runs since last October. On eight of them, he continued, students from U.S. universities participated.

He identified the schools as Harvard, Boston College, Miami University, Princeton and Indiana, but declined to name the students because "I don't think it is fair to the boys."

LANDED AGENTS

The U.S. government, through the Central Intelligence Agency, had advance knowledge of the trips, Rorke said. He described the operations as supply missions or trips to land agents in Cuba and said the only shots fired from Violynn III were defensive, after the boat had been fired upon.

Rorke also claimed that the CIA had financed trips of the Violynn III. These were last let raids in October and December of 1961, he said.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker faces defeat in his bid for reelection in next Monday's voting.

During the last two weeks the 67-year-old Conservative leader has managed to cut the defections in his own party with his "everybody is against me" campaigning. The enthusiasm of his supporters has also been strengthened by the feeling that "He said the Bomarcas were worthless and now the United States admits it."

Still a drop in Mr. Diefenbaker's support to below 100 seats—it now is 116—seems fairly certain in view of the virtually collapsed Conservative vote in Quebec and the strong anti-Diefenbaker revolt among hitherto staunch Conservatives in the more urbanized parts of Ontario.

Whether Liberal leader Lester Pearson can pick up the 133 seats needed for a clear majority remains uncertain. During the last five weeks I have interviewed typical voters in 41 of the nation's more sensitive ridings. These interviews indicate that the Liberals probably can count on something like 120 seats, with another 15 to 20 seats still close and doubtful.

A pro-Liberal surge in the next few days could sweep Mr. Pearson in with a majority. Up to this writing, though, I have found no evidence of any such surge. The main changes in voter feeling that I have detected in recent days have been a stiffening of pro-Diefenbaker loyalty and a jump in the proportion of voters who protest. "I'm disgusted with all four parties. This election should never have been held."

In Ottawa a government pension expert summed up a feeling I have found in every riding when he said, "Diefenbaker has shown he isn't fit to be Prime Minister but Pearson is no leader either."

Probably the key to Liberal hopes is the sizeable number of voters who declare, "I don't care which party wins as long as someone gets a majority." If these voters decide en masse that the Liberal party holds the only hope for a stable government, their votes could still produce a majority government.

Even if that were to happen, Monday's balloting will still be that of a sorely divided, election-weary nation. The rural-urban cleavage laid bare in the 1962 election has been deepened by this year's campaigning. Entangled with this farm-city conflict are bitter differences of sectional interests and economic class, reflecting the uneven economic development across the country; also conflicting attitudes towards the United States.

The heaviest Liberal gains can be expected in the two urban-suburban complexes of Toronto and Montreal, which hold about a fifth of Canada's population. In Monday's voting these areas seem likely to be swept clear of Conservative representation in Parliament. One or two popular MPs like Frank McGee in the Toronto suburb of York-Scarboro may survive but even this isn't too good a bet.

Metropolitan Toronto and Montreal are the parts of Canada which have experienced
